New Regimes in Manchuria

SEES JAPANESE INFLUENCE BEHIND NEW GOVERNMENTS

YOUNG RULER SAYS NEW GOVERNMENTS WILL NOT BE RECOGNIZED

Peiping, China, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Independent governments in the three provinces of Manchuria have been established, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Li, young ruler of the troubled area, was officially informed today.

The autonomous regimes were set up at Mukden, Kirin and Harbin, the advisers said.

The young marshal issued a statement asserting that the new governments were established "obviously under Japanese influence" and said they would not be recognized.

Marshal Chang, affiliated with the national government of China at Nanking, has been in Peiping for some months. He established headquarters here when named commander of the Peiping-Tientsin area under Nanking.

Japanese airplanes were dispatched today in pursuit of retreating Chinese soldiers after it was reported that they had sacked a number of Korean emigrant villages and killed 300 residents.

A report was received from Antung today that Japanese troops clashed with Chinese soldiers who had been suspected of planning banditry. Five of the Chinese were killed.

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Chinese bandits armed with machine guns derailed the international train from Yunmu, capital of Yunnan province, today and murdered a French railway official. The bandits escaped without booty.

The train was derailed in the hills near Lielang. Troops were sent after the bandits. Chinese authorities co-operated in the search.

Body of Ex-Ypsilanti Judge to be Exhumed

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—(UP)—The body of Darwin E. Curtiss, former municipal judge at Ypsilanti, was exhumed today and brought to the University of Michigan where it will be examined for traces of poison.

Sheriff Jacob Andres and John Osborn, a deputy, went to Highland cemetery near Ypsilanti this morning and removed the body.

Judge Curtiss was an uncle of Catherine Keller, who is held in the county jail here, charged with being an accessory in the Ypsilanti torch murders. Judge Curtiss died last February. Miss Keller inherited $35,000 from his estate.

Laval to Leave for U. S. on October 20

Paris, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Premier Pierre Laval will leave France on his visit to President Hoover in time to reach New York October 20, the cabinet decided.

The premier may sail on the liner Ile de France October 16. The date of his arrival in the United States will make it impossible for him to attend the Yorkton celebration.

The cabinet unanimously congratulated Laval and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand on their successful mission of reconciliation to Berlin and decided to name French members of the permanent Franco-German economic commission.

War Department Militia Bureau Chief Resigns

Washington, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Major General William G. Everson, chief of the war department militia bureau, resigned today, effective Nov. 30. He will go to Denver, Colo., and assume the pastorate of the First Baptist church there. Everson is an ordained minister.

Police, Strikers in Pitched Battle

Twenty Persons, Including 12 Officers, Injured When Miners Disregard Mayor's Order

Estevan, Sask., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today patrolled debris strewn Estevan streets where two striking miners were killed and more than 20 persons seriously injured in a fierce pitched battle. Twelve of the injured were officers. One was a girl.

The battle, precipitated when strikers disregarded Mayor Bannatyne's orders not to parade, was the most serious labor outbreak in all Canada since the Winnipeg strike of 1919.

Police operators, against whom the miners struck two weeks ago for higher wages and better living conditions, insisted the whole trouble was caused by communists.

The miners assembled late yesterday

Issues Plea for Funds to Aid in Unseating Schall

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—A plea for funds from Minnesota women to aid in unseating Senator Thomas D. Schall was issued today by the senatorial contest committee, a woman's political organization.

The committee which works jointly with the democratic state central committee announced that as the result of an investigation which has been going on since last February, the committee has accumulated "evidence" of such convincing character that it is satisfied that a successful outcome in the unseating of Schall may reasonably be expected.

The contest will charge corrupt practices and connection with bootlegging interests, the committee said.

Pays for Shooting Holes in Tires of Hearse

Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Charles Milbradt, Sebeka, who shot holes in the tires of the hearse while funeral services for a deceased Legion member were being conducted in the church today paid for the tires and promised to stay away from liquor.

Milbradt was under a suspended sentence of 60 days in county jail for the disturbance he caused July 2, when he shot up the hearse because he was told he couldn't be a pall bearer at the funeral.

British Parliament to Adjourn, MacDonald Says

London, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald announced today that parliament would adjourn.

The announcement was taken to indicate that the question of a general election would be held temporarily in abeyance.

The date for adjournment of the present emergency session, he indicated, probably would be Oct. 7. Lord Reading in the House of Lords also announced that the session would end October 7 "unless something unforeseen occurred."

CANNON DENIES GETTING FUNDS IN 1928 CAMPAIGN

CITES TESTIMONY OF W. H. WOOD TO PROVE DEFENSE IN STATEMENT

Washington, Sept. 30.—(UP)—United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover announced today that charges Bishop James Cannon, Jr., had violated the federal corrupt practices act would be presented to the grand jury here October 8.

Rover said the charge was based on Cannon's activity in 1928 when he was a leader of anti-Smith Democratic forces in southern states. Miss Ada L. Burroughs, secretary to the anti-Smith organization headed by Cannon, also is to be presented to the grand jury, Rover said.

Washington, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., today denied that he had received funds during the 1928 presidential campaign from the account of Claudius H. Huston, as was intimated in testimony before the senate campaign investigating committee on August 28.

Cannon's denial was made in a statement issued to the press. He cited testimony before the committee of W. H. Wood, Charlotte, N. C., that Cannon had sent him $5,000 for use in the North Carolina anti-Smith campaign and that the draft which he thought was signed by the bishop was drawn on the International Germanic Trust Co., of New York.

Cannon also quoted testimony of Conrad C. Probst concerning the draft which Probst said he received charged to the account of Huston.

"I have no intention or desire to reflect in any way upon the sincerity of Mr. Wood or Mr. Probst," Cannon's statement said, "but I herewith present the facts which do positively indicate that both of them are entirely mistaken, that the draft sent by Mr. Wood to New York for $5,000 upon the International Germanic Trust Co. was not a draft signed by me or with which I had any connection whatever."

Quantico, Va., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who is believed to contemplate a political career in Pennsylvania, was formally relieved today of his post of commandant of the marine corps base here.

Butler is retiring from the marine corps at his own request.

BACK TO THE LAND MOVEMENT IN U. S. IS POPULAR TREND

HOMESTEAD SEEKERS MAY EXCEED 50,000 THIS YEAR, REPORTS SHOW

Denver, Sept. 30.—(UP)—A rush of homesteading as a result of current trying times was reported today by J. A. More, chief of the field division of the federal land office in Denver.

More than 40,000 applications for homesteads were handled by the department of interior last year. The number this year may exceed 50,000, Moore said.

He revealed the back-to-the-land movement is general in all of the public domain states of the west.

Under the stock raising homestead law, passed by congress in 1920, an applicant may file on 640 acres, but he must waive mineral rights on that land.

Seventeen states still have some vacant, unappropriated and unreserved land, 11 of which are public domain states. Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming are included in the public domain group, while Arkansas, Florida, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota still have public land.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 30.—(UP)—A moonshine still explosion killed one woman, burned another seriously and wrecked a house here. Amy Moser, 50, died of burns today at the Coffey clinic. Mrs. George Hanson, 45, had second degree burns. The blast shook houses many blocks.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Reorganization of the zones of game and fish was announced today by W. D. Stewart, director of that section of work under the conservation commission.

The list was given out by Stewart who returned today from the northern part of the state where he had been on tour of Minnesota resources with the five conservation commissioners. Numerous protests of appointments in the game and fish department were voiced by residents of the towns visited by the commission.

Ten temporary chief wardens were appointed by Stewart, leaving one district without a head. In the reorganization, Stewart has rezoned the former 20 districts under 11 new divisions. No changes in the salaries of the wardens was announced.

Those appointed today included: First, D. P. Brady, Window. Second, R. Robinson, Rochester. Third, S. Warner, Richfield. Fourth, E. S. Nordin, Minneapolis. Fifth, J. O. Waters, Alexandria. Sixth, B. A. Goff, Aitkin. Seventh, no chief warden named. Eighth, Charles Masoner, Bemidji. Ninth, William anson, HWinton. Tenth, H. E. Stalter, Duluth. Eleventh, Arthur Johnson, Grand Marais.

Included in the new lineup of districts, the sixth district will include Freeborn, Rice, Goodhue, Olmsted, the ninth and tenth districts will include Huston, Mower, Dodge and Wabasha, and the fifth district will include Tra-and Cook.

verse, Stearns, Big Stone, Polk, Swift, the second district will include LeChippewa, Lac qui Parle, Yellow Med-Sueur, Waseca, Winona, Fillmore, Leine, Kandiyohi, Renville and Meeker.

Freeborn, Rice, Goodhue, Olmsted, the ninth and tenth districts will include Huston, Mower, Dodge and Wabasha, and the fifth district will include Tra-and Cook.

The fifth district will include Tra-and Cook.

POLICE BELIEVE GLECKMAN WILL BE FREED THURSDAY

REPORT ASSOCIATES OF POLITICIAN TO BE RAISING RANSOM FUND

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Chief of Police Thomas A. Brown today said that release of Leon Gleckman, St. Paul politician, reported kidnapped and help for $250,000 ransom, was "imminent."

"Gleckman will probably be freed Thursday," Brown said.

Brown refused to say where he obtained his information or where the man whom prohibition agents termed the "brains" of Twin City alcohol rings was being held.

Letter Reveals Kidnaping

Associates of Gleckman were reported to be raising funds to obtain his release. Morris Roisner, chief business associate of Gleckman, was reported to have gone to Chicago to arrange details of the ransom payment.

A letter from Gleckman, postmarked from Chicago, revealed that he had been kidnapped and asked his wife not to worry as he was "being treated kindly."

With the discovery that Gleckman's automobile was missing, police investigated the possibility that the kidnapping occurred in St. Paul.

Says Moran is Involved

Unconfirmed reports said that Leo Mongoven, Chicago public enemy, was responsible for the kidnapping and that the crime was planned in retaliation for the blocking of efforts of George "Bugs" Moran and Mongoven to establish themselves in the northwest.

St. Paul police, who revealed yesterday that Gleckman had been missing from his home nearly a week, could not confirm the rumors that the alleged kidnapping was in retaliation of Gleckman's preventing the Chicago gang from taking over the Twin City territory.

Gleckman left his home last Thursday after receiving a mysterious telephone call from Chicago, his associates said. He has not been seen since. A letter was said to have been received by his wife saying he was being held in Chicago by kidnappers but was well. It was reported without confirmation that a second letter had been received from Gleckman. Its contents were not revealed.

Gleckman, a Capone Friend
Gleckman was understood to be friendly with Alphonse (Scarface) Capone, Chicago gang leader who will go on trial next month for alleged income tax evasions.

Members of the Moran-Mongoven gang were known to be in Minnesota last year. The leader was seen near Brainerd, Minn., while vacationing in the central lake region of the state. Their efforts to sell liquor in the Twin Cities were blocked, it was said.

The recent killing of Harry Morris, alleged Chicago and Twin City rum runner and hi-jacker, was said to have resulted from the most recent attempt to muscle in the Minnesota alcohol racket. Morris' body was found along a lonely road near Red Wing, Minn.

Local police were checking the possibility that Gleckman never reached Chicago but was held in or near the Twin Cities. According to this theory, Gleckman was kidnapped shortly after he left his home and was held here.

EPISCOPALIANS ADOPT LIBERALIZED MARRIAGE CANON

PROHIBITION AND UNEMPLOYMENT APPARENTLY SIDE-TRACKED AT MEETING

Denver, Colo., Sept. 30.—(UP)—The 50th triennial convention of the Episcopal church neared a close today with two major national problems which confronted it—prohibition and unemployment—apparently sidetracked.

Both prohibition and unemployment were hailed as among the three outstanding issues which faced the church when the convention started. A new canon on divorce was the third.

The divorce canon question was settled yesterday when the house of deputies and the house of bishops agreed on a liberalized revision of the old marriage code of the church which would permit the re-marriage of the innocent party to a divorce on grounds of adultery. The canon also permits church annulment of marriages dissolved by civil courts where consanguinity, lack of free consent, mistaken identity, mental deficiency, insanity, extreme youth, impotence, social disease or bigamy was the cause.

Concerning prohibition or unemployment the church has been unable to take any stand or evolve any plan, however.

Washington, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Employment in manufacturing industries in August was 12.4 per cent lower than in August last year, and payroll totals were 20.8 per cent lower, the department of labor estimated today on the basis of reports from more than 12,000 industrial concerns.

Hoover Advisor Suggests Concrete National Program to Speed Recovery and Restore Confidence

DEMO VICTORY IN MISSOURI STIRS PARTY LEADERS

VIEW SEATING OF DEMOCRATS AS EXPRESSION AGAINST ADMINISTRATION

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 30.—(UP)—Democratic leaders today interpreted the victory of their candidate in the seventh Missouri congressional district as an expression of voters against the national administration.

With possible control of the house of representatives at stake, Robert E. Johnson, Democrat, defeated John W. Palmer, Republican, by approximately 9,000 votes in a race for the vacancy left by the death of Rep. Samuel C. Major, Democrat, L. L. Collins, independent, was third.

Returns from 230 of the district's 240 precincts gave: Johnson, 27,218; Palmer, 18,067; Collins, 3,843. The district normally has a democratic majority of approximately 2,750.

Both candidates avoided the prohibition question, injected into the campaign by Collins, an advocate of prohibition repeal.

Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, the democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1928, and former U. S. Senator James A. Reed, Missouri, a possible candidate for the 1932 presidential nomination, both stumped the district for their colleague.

B. A. Goff, Aitkin, Named Chief Game Warden 6th District in Reorganization

No Longer Will Game and Fish Department Be Political Dumping Ground, Commission Decrees

Douglas Lodge, Itasca State Park, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—The state conservation commission will take action to end the spoils system in selecting game wardens and halt the practice of making the game and fish department a political dumping ground, William McEwen, commissioner, said today.

The announcement was made after a meeting of the commission on the game warden situation. The commission is visiting state owned lands in Northern Minnesota.

Initial steps in the commission program, McEwen said, would include: 1. A system, similar to the civil service, whereby wardens will be chosen solely on their merits; 2. Game wardens will be put in distinctive uniforms; 3. Inauguration of a game warden training school, similar to the highway patrol school of Earle Brown.

The commission also plans to take action against bootleg trappers who it is estimated are taking illegally about $250,000 worth of skins annually out of lands and waters near the border. Most of the skins are being taken out by airplane, it was said.

Attorney General Henry N. Benson was asked to give an opinion as to whether the state has the right to control these bootleg activities on the border.

Pollution of the Rainy River was brought to the attention of the commission by John A. Kennedy, customs collector at Baudette who explained that sulphite from numerous mills is destroying fish at the mouth of the Lake of the Woods. The commissioners will proceed to Cass Lake and the Chippewa National Forest.

townships of Cass county.

The second district will include LeChippewa, Lac qui Parle, Yellow Med-Sueur, Waseca, Winona, Fillmore, Leine, Kandiyohi, Renville and Meeker.

Freeborn, Rice, Goodhue, Olmsted, the ninth and tenth districts will include Huston, Mower, Dodge and Wabasha, and the fifth district will include Tra-and Cook.

WORLD FLIERS DUE AT EDMONTON 4 P. M. C. S. T.

Death Toll in Minnesota Soars From Heat Wave

ST. PAUL HAD 101 TEMPERATURE, JUNE RECORD YESTERDAY

46 PERSONS DEAD DIRECTLY FROM HEAT OR EFFORTS TO ESCAPE IT

DAKOTA FARMERS WORK AT NIGHT TO ESCAPE WILTING EFFECTS OF HEAT

St. Paul, June 30.—(U.P.)—The end of June may see the end of the present heat wave, the weather bureau predicted today.

The last day of the month, however, will be almost as hot as its predecessors which established new all-June records and surpassed the highest summer levels of almost a century. Yesterday the mercury climbed to 101 in St. Paul to set a new mark for June readings.

The death toll in Minnesota from the heat soared at levels almost unheard of. In this one state, a total of 46 persons were dead directly from the heat or efforts to escape from it. Thirty-one died of prostrations during the present wave. A dozen were drowned and three were killed in automobile accidents while en route to beaches or resorts.

The Dakotas reported more than a dozen dead from heat or drownings and Wisconsin had its share of victims numbering close to half a score. Farmers were working at night in some places in an effort to escape the wilting rays of the sun. Crops were being burned up by the heat and agriculturists predicted serious consequences if the hot weather continued much longer without rain fall.

Resorts on Minnesota's ten thousand lakes were reported filled near capacity as state residents and those from outside Minnesota sought relief in swimming, fishing and other recreation from the sweltering heat.

The forecast held little relief for the southern section of the state but the prediction of slightly cooler weather was made for the northern section. Thunder showers which may bring cooling weather with them played hide and seek with the weather bureau and may not come until Wednesday.

Highways and city pavement in the "heat belt" buckled and cracked because of expansion in the scorching weather. One motorist saw a two-foot crack appear in the pavement ahead of him but was unable to stop his automobile in time to avoid wrecking it.

Four coaches of a railroad train in Indiana were derailed after the heat had caused the tracks to become uneven. Other trains were slowed down to prevent similar accidents. Seven thermometers left in a display window of a Lincoln, Neb., store exploded in the sun.

Three youths charged with swimming at a Chicago beach without clothing were freed with a warning. The judge agreed with them that the temptation to wear as little as possible was very great in such hot weather.

Farmers in the Dakotas and other states were shipping their cattle to market prematurely because of water shortages and dried out pastures. Harvesting—much of it in night to escape the heat—was hurried to prevent crop losses. Grain is over-ripe in many sections, it was said, and wind or rain would batter it to the ground.

Among the high temperatures of the northwest were Aberdeen, S. D., 107; Eau Claire, Wis., 107; Red Wing, Minn., 105; Winona, Minn., 104.5; Minneapolis, 102; St. Paul, 101; and Moorhead, 100.

New drownings reported in the Twin Cities today included Herman J. Strom, 35, St. Paul; his 8-year-old son, Richard, both of whom drowned in Phalen, and John Knapp, 19, St. Paul.

Heat prostrations claimed the following victims since yesterday afternoon, Patrick Hagney, 75, St. Paul, former state legislator; Essau Roberts, 36, Worthington; Jacob Shapiro, 58, Minneapolis; Mrs. Maria Rasmussen, 91, Minneapolis; Joseph Schelonska, 29, Little Falls; Mrs. Marie Peterson, 82, Minneapolis; Mrs. A. J. Swanson, 80, Minneapolis; Mrs. Melissa Down, 83, Minneapolis; Winced Binstock, Rice Lake; Charles Josephson, 55, Minneapolis; Charles Schupel, 64, Minneapolis; John Willinger, 43, New Ulm; and Peter Weisgerber, 80, Minneapolis.

Sheboygan, Wis., June 30.—(U.P.)—A buck in the Vollrath Park zoo became so hot he jumped the fence and dashed into Lake Michigan. When coast guardsmen overtook him he was 600 feet on his way toward Michigan.

St. Paul, June 30.—(U.P.)—A traffic jam at high and low pressure areas was blamed today by the United States weather bureau for the heat wave that has resulted in temperatures of 100's.

"A low pressure area, stalled over the northwest and a high over the south Atlantic seaboard have brought burning winds from the southeast," M. F. Hovde, weather forecaster said.

130 APPLICATIONS FOR PARDON SET NEW RECORD IN STATE

St. Paul, June 30.—(U.P.)—One hundred thirty applications for pardon and commutation of sentence by the state pardon board which meets July 13, set a new record, W. A. Lamson, secretary, said today.

In addition, 75 applications have been received for rehearings. Members of the pardon board are Gov. Floyd B. Olson, Henry N. Benson, attorney general, and Chief Justice Samuel Wilson of the state supreme court.

GOVERNMENT WHEAT IS STILL FOR SALE TODAY

DESPITE TREMENDOUS PRESSURE EXERTED UPON FEDERAL FARM BOARD

EFFORTS HAD BEEN MADE TO BRING ABOUT CHANGE OF POLICY

By H. O. THOMPSON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, June 30.—Government wheat was still for sale today, despite tremendous pressure exerted upon the federal farm board to bring about a change of policy.

Chairman James C. Stone, responding to a suggestion by President Hoover, has promised a statement tomorrow on the board's plans.

Stone is not in sympathy with those who have been clamoring for the board to keep stabilization wheat off the market. But in view of the White House announcement, it was generally believed the board would give ground to some extent. The farm board would be at a great disadvantage in any controversy with the White House, particularly since there are two vice-chairmen on the board which Mr. Hoover must soon fill.

Stone is a newcomer in official life, and he is a fighter. He says he never has quit under fire and has no intention of beginning the practice now.

It seemed unlikely, therefore, that Stone would agree without reservation to reversal of the beliefs he has repeated with such emphasis in recent weeks. Stone inherited some of the quarrels with the grain trade which developed when Alexander Legge was chairman. And so far private grain traders dealing for personal profit have obtained no concessions either from Legge or Stone.

Millers are still buying stabilization corporation wheat and Stone said he had received letters and telegrams upholding the previously announced policy of the board to dispose of its surplus stocks "in such a way as to impose a minimum of burden upon domestic and world prices."

Stone took opportunity in a press interview to strike back at some of the farm board critics.

"I don't think it is fair to assume the farm board has been responsible for all the wheat troubles of the world," he said. "Every country has its own agricultural problem and these have had an upsetting influence on the whole world."

Stone declined to reveal the present extent of the grain stabilization holdings. "It would not be wise to give this information to the fellow who is trying to undermine the farm board," he said.

The chairman said the board had no intention of re-entering stabilization operations, abandoned recently when the 1931 crop became a factor in the market.

DIRIGIBLE GRAF ZEPPELIN LEAVES ON FLIGHT TO ICELAND

Friedrichshafen, Germany, June 30.—(U.P.)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin left today on a flight to Iceland, with Dr. Hugo Eckener in command.

The big airship of world-girdling fame moved into the sky at 6:34 a. m. It carried 12 passengers on the cruise, including Lieut. Cmdr. Edward Smith, United States coast guard observer. Dr. Eckener said they would return Friday.

The route lay over Holland and England to Iceland, and back via Norway.

Amsterdam, June 30.—(U.P.)—The Graf Zeppelin flew over Holland today on its way to Iceland, passing over Utrecht, Rotterdam, The Hague, and out over the North Sea at Scheveningen.

Cromer, England, June 30.—(U.P.)—The Graf Zeppelin passed over Cromer today at an altitude of about 300 feet and then turned, passing out towards the sea.

Deadlock Feared in Franco-American Parley Looking to Agreement on War Debt Holiday

CRISIS IS FEARED, MELLON ASKS FOR MORE ADVICE

SECRETARY OF TREASURY AND AMBASSADOR EDGE ARE STILL OPTIMISTIC

ADMIT, HOWEVER, FRENCH AND AMERICAN VIEWPOINTS ARE "WIDELY DIVERGENT"

By RALPH HEINZEN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, June 30.—A deadlock was feared today in the Franco-American conversations looking to an agreement on President Hoover's war debts and reparations holiday plan.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, said the conversations had been adjourned until tomorrow, a crisis was indicated, and it was understood that he had been compelled to ask Washington for further instructions.

Mellon and Walter E. Edge, the United States ambassador, both were far more optimistic than the French that an accord would be reached on the French and American viewpoints. They admitted, however, that their opinions still were "widely divergent."

There appeared to be, slight possibility that the French would move until Washington concedes the primary point—the length of time to be given Germany to pay up the year's unconditional annuities. France wants the annuities and incidental payments totalling 612,000,000 marks (about $145,250,000) paid in five years. Washington has held out for 25. Germany wants to pay it in 1938, at the end of the Young plan.

Mellon and Edge spent the morning conferring. They consulted Washington by cable.

Negotiations were said to be most cordial, but the French apparently have made it clear that they are not willing to yield to a compromise on their reservation to the Hoover plan. The French accepted the American proposal for a debts moratorium, with the reservation that Germany pay its unconditional annuities during the year of grace to be granted under Hoover's project.

Mellon talked with Premier Pierre Laval and other members of the government last night, when it was announced that a recess was taken until Wednesday. The general impression was that Mellon and Walter E. Edge, United States ambassador, had encountered difficulty in attempting to persuade the French to change their attitude.

A terse official communique said: "The Franco-American negotiators met at the residence of Premier Laval at 9:30 P. M. to continue conversations. Mr. Mellon and Mr. Edge will inform their government of the state of negotiations. A new meeting will take place Wednesday."

The cabinet's position, supported by the chamber of deputies, was given strength by opinions expressed by the cabinet members at last night's special meeting.

Mellon was told in minute detail the Governor Olson Sticks to Gull Lake; Must Make 150 Appointments

St. Paul, June 30.—(U.P.)—Governor Floyd B. Olson today was two days overdue at his offices at the state capitol and was reported extending his vacation stay at a cottage at Gull Lake until tomorrow.

More than 150 major appointments due to be made this week were being held in abeyance pending the governor's return.

2 WORKMEN ARE WASHED INTO WICHITA SEWER

OVERCOME BY SEWER GAS, POLICE AND AMBULANCES CALLED

RESCUE WORKERS OPEN MANHOLE TO CATCH THEIR BODIES

Wichita, Kansas, June 30.—(U.P.)—Two workmen were threatened with unusual injury, possibly death, today when they were overcome by sewer gas and washed into a sewer main.

While pulling out a sandbag plug which had dammed up the opening into a large sewer main, they collapsed and were swept into the big main by the strong current of the sewer wash.

Police and ambulances were called. Rescue workers opened a manhole down the street from where the men had been swept away and hoped to catch their bodies as they swept by.

Sometime later, however, the bodies had not been sighted, although one man's hat had floated by. Gas in the sewer is strong and rescue workers awaited long ropes, to be used as safety lines, before they ventured into the sewer main.

The workmen were George Durham and Oscar Lindquist, both married.

St. John, N. F., June 30.—(U.P.)—On a hospital cot in Clarence Chamberlain's plane, Miss Ruth Nichols, injured aviatrix, left for Boston today from where she will proceed to her home in Rye, N. Y.

Miss Nichols was injured here last week when her plane made a faulty landing.

French attitude on the demand that, if Germany's unconditional reparations are paid to the international bank and then lent back to Germany as credits, there are certain Balkan nations which also will need aid and which should be aided out of the funds deposited with the bank for international settlements at Basle. It was believed that this problem, of permitting some of the funds to go to the Balkan nations rather than to permit the entire sum to be turned back to Germany was one of the most serious difficulties gracing the conversations.

The United States has insisted that Germany alone should benefit from the money returned from its payments into the Basle bank.

URGES NEW THEORIES FOR THE UNIVERSE, GRAVITY

PROF. CALVIN SAMUEL PAGE DELIVERS ADDRESS AT CHICAGO

SAYS NO SCIENTIST CAN EXPLAIN CORRECTLY 12 PHENOMENA OF UNIVERSE

Chicago, June 30.—(U.P.)—Scientists are wrong in practically every one of their theories concerning the universe, gravity, electricity and other phenomena of nature, Prof. Calvin Samuel Page said in an address last night.

"There is not and never has been a scientist who can explain correctly the 12 great phenomena of the universe," Page said. "All of the modern professors have accepted books as their authority. That is why they are wrong."

"Scientists say there are 92 kinds of atoms, many of which are held together by a force they call cohesion. I add another atom, which I call the Rex atom."

"It is a repellent force: when two Rex atoms come together, they repel themselves and fly apart. All other atoms cohere to Rex atoms."

Page said that electricity is composed of Rex atoms flowing in currents. It is held to the wire by cohesion with other atoms, he said, and it flows because of repulsion between the Rex atoms.

"Rex is an essential part of any chemical compound," Page said. "Three fourths of the universe is made up of it. It causes earthquakes and maintains the atmosphere."

Page was awarded a degree by the University of Illinois and taught mathematics in Iowa colleges until he retired 16 years ago to study physics. He was awarded a Nobel prize in 1924 for his work on the atomic theory.

HITLERITE STUDENTS INJURED IN RIOTS

Munich, Germany, June 30.—(U.P.)—Many were injured in rioting at the University of Munich today when a crowd of Hitlerite students, shouting "down with the Jews" demonstrated against Prof. Nowinski, accused of defending the Treaty of Versailles.

Police, wielding swords and truncheons, cleared the campus and the university was closed. A student parade, led by a wounded and bandaged demonstrator, resulted in another clash later.

Hamburg, Germany, June 30.—(U.P.)—Hitlerite students hoisted the Hakenkreuz, or Swastika emblem of the German fascists, over the University of Hamburg today amid wild tumult. The emblem is reported as an anti-Semitic symbol.

Berlin, June 30.—(U.P.)—Minor disturbances occurred at the University of Berlin today.

ROBBINS AND JONES TO START NONSTOP FLIGHT TO TOKIO

Fort Worth, Tex., June 30.—(U.P.)—Reginald Robbins, former holder of the world's endurance flying record, and H. S. Jones, Texas oil promoter, left by air at 4:50 a. m. today for Seattle, Wash., where they plan to begin their proposed nonstop flight to Tokio Thursday or Friday.

Robbins was flying a Lockheed Vega.

Jimmy Mattern and H. S. Greber, who will do the refueling for Robbins at Nome, Alaska, left at the same time in a Ford tri-motor.

GRASSHOPPERS WORK WAY IN NORTH NEBRASKA

RUIN FARM CROPS THAT FAMINE IS PREDICTED FOR SECTION

WHEAT, OATS AND ALFALFA FIELDS LEFT BARREN BY INSECTS

Lincoln, Neb., June 30.—(U.P.)—Great swarms of grasshoppers today worked their way through North Central Nebraska, ruining farm crops to such an extent that famine was predicted for the section.

Wheat, oats and alfalfa fields, even pastures, were reported left barren by the insects. Farmers appealed to Gov. Charles Bryan for aid, so acute was the situation.

State and federal authorities were asked to supply funds for purchase and distribution of insect poison. The state set aside $1,600 for preventive work. Congressman Edgar Howard, of Columbus, appealed to the department of agriculture in Washington, D. C., for further aid.

Not since 1870, when an army of grasshoppers literally devastated the whole section, has damage been so widespread in the north central section of the state, he said.

Railroad trains were forced to travel on delayed schedules throughout the stricken area. Tracks were made slippery by the crushed bodies of the grasshoppers. All trains used sand to prevent the wheels from spinning on the rails.

Clothes, left lying on the ground or even stretched over a line, were gnawed into small pieces by the insects, it was reported.

The extraordinary warm summer, together with the fact that last winter was mild in the section, is responsible for the pestilence, experts said.

ATTEMPT MADE TO SIGNAL MARS

RADIO STATION W6BAX TO SEND OUT SIGNALS FOR 20 MONTHS

Sunnyvale, Calif., June 30.—(U.P.)—Hornby P. Taylor, widely known amateur radio operator, attempted to signal the planet Mars today from his radio station W6BAX.

The station, one of the most powerful short-wave installations in the country, will send out signals at regular intervals during the next 20 months to the far-off planet, Taylor said.

HEARINGS JULY 15 ON RAIL PLEA FOR HIGH FREIGHT RATE

Washington, June 30.—(U.P.)—The Interstate Commerce commission announced today that hearings on the application of the nation's railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates will begin July 15.

At the initial hearing the petitioners and the parties supporting the petition will be heard. On August 31, another hearing will enable further cross examination of the railroads' witnesses and submission of evidence by agricultural interests and others protesting the increases.

TEACHER IN NATION'S FIRST KINDERGARTEN DIES IN WISCONSIN

Watertown, Wis., June 30.—(U.P.)—Funeral services were planned today for Miss Ella Koenig, 70, a teacher in America's first kindergarten. She died yesterday.

Intimately known as Tanta Ella, Miss Koenig taught in the kindergarten established here in 1856 by Mrs. Carl Schurz. She retired in 1918 when the popularity of the German language, which she taught, declined during the war.

LAST REPORT ARE FLYING OVER 160 MILES AN HOUR

HAVE BEEN SIGHTED TWICE SINCE TAKE-OFF FROM FAIRBANKS, ALASKA

FLIERS ARE TAKING MORE HAZARDOUS DIRECT ROUTE FOR EDMONTON

New York, June 30.—(U.P.)—The National Broadcasting Co. representatives at Edmonton, Alta., reported to New York by telephone today that Wiley Post and Harold Gatty had been sighted twice since their take-off from Fairbanks, Alaska.

The fliers, the reports said, apparently are taking the more hazardous direct route, rather than following the Mackenzie river basin, and were averaging better than 160 miles an hour.

The Edmonton advices said that the fliers were sighted over Carmack, Alaska, at 7:20 A. M. (9:20 A. M. CST.) and again over White Horse in the Yukon at 9 A. M. (11 A. M. CST.)

On the basis of the speed being made, fliers at the Edmonton field told the N. B. C. representatives they expected Post and Gatty to arrive about 4 P. M. CST.

Edmonton, Alta., June 30.—(U.P.)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, who are streaking around the world in their monoplane Winnie Mae, may be running through the first really unfavorable weather of their flight.

Weather forecasts at the Edmonton airport indicated the fliers may be encountering a northwest wind of 18 miles an hour.

A heavy rain was pouring over the field at 11 A. M. MST, and visibility was cut down to two miles at the ground.

The ceiling was fair and the temperature was 50 degrees. The barometer was falling with a likelihood of continued rain.

Airmen here calculated that the aviators should arrive here at approximately 4 P. M. MST, 5 P. M. CST.

A world-wide broadcast has been arranged. Stations in Canada and the United States will carry talks by the aviators and short wave stations will carry the broadcast to Europe.

The fliers, who left Fairbanks, Alaska, at 3:20 A. M. (7:20 A. M. CST.) should be more than half way here if all went well. They were flying over the most hazardous part of their 15,000 mile trip around the world, airmen said. It is approximately 1,600 miles from Fairbanks to Edmonton.

Two routes were open to Post and Gatty after they leave here. They can carry a capacity load of fuel and try for New York City without a stop or they may attempt to land in some American airport, presumably either Detroit or Cleveland.

CITIZENSHIP DENIED MAN WHO WOULD NOT FIGHT FOR THE U. S.

Fort Worth, Texas, June 30.—(U.P.)—Citizenship was denied here today to Elihu D. Ryden, dean of Southwest Junior college at Keene, Texas, when he told Judge James E. Wilson he could not shoulder arms for the United States in case of war.

He came to America thirty years ago from Sweden.

Ryden was barred when he said he would not serve in the army as a combatant because "killing is contrary to the principle of Christianity."

Violent Communal Riots Between Greeks and Jews at Salonica Today

Salonica, June 30.—(U.P.)—Violent communal riots between Greeks and Jews broke out again today. The Jewish quarter was aflame.

Ten were killed and 50 wounded in fighting here.

The Jewish quarter was set ablaze at four points. One estimate said 200 houses were burned.

The government is considering a proclamation of martial law to restore order. Feeling was running high.

WHEAT JUMPS 8 CENTS A BUSHEL

Chicago, June 30.—(U.P.)—With the closing of June contracts in wheat on the board of trade today the prices jumped eight cents a bushel.

When buyers sought to close out their contracts today, they were forced to jump prices two and three cents at a time.

Only a few sales were recovered, June wheat opening at 73c, up four cents from Monday's close and advancing another four cents before the session ended.

Deadwood, S. D., June 30.—(U.P.)—Fire raged through a 50 acre tract of timber in the Signal Knob district south of Rochford today and more than 100 volunteers were called out to fight it.

The blaze, apparently caused by lightning, broke out shortly after noon yesterday. Fire fighters expected to get it under control with backfires some time today.

In all the millions that are breathlessly following the progress of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, who are attempting to fly around the world in ten days, none is more intimately interested than the group presented here. Above is Mrs. Harold Gatty, wife of the flier, with her three children, Alan, five years old; Lindsay, three, and Ronald, who is nearly two. Left are Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Post, senior, who are confident that their famous son has the ability to bring the monoplane "Winnie Mae" around the big circle on schedule.

ALLEYS PROJECT PROVIDES WORK FOR ABOUT 30 MEN

EXCAVATION PRELIMINARY TO LAYING SLAB BEGINS TODAY HERE

Public improvements in Brainerd today had provided jobs for about 30 men as preliminary work for the paving of three blocks of alleys in the business district swung into full sway.

For several days a crew of workmen of the light department has been busy building an underground conduit for carrying light and power lines. Following them this morning is a force of laborers excavating for the actual construction project.

To Remove Poles in Spring

While poles carrying the light and power lines will not be removed until next spring, the underground channel is being built to eliminate the necessity of tearing up the newly laid concrete slab later. This phase is in keeping with the progressive policy by the city for the removal of all overhead transmission lines in the business district.

Excavation for the paving was begun this morning at the foot of Eighth street between Front and Laurel. According to Robert Campbell, city engineer, this work will be completed in several days. Concrete pouring operations are expected to be completed by the middle of the month and the stretch thrown open to traffic late next month.

Thompson Bros. Hold Contract

The project involving the paving of three blocks from Fifth to Eighth streets between Front and Laurel calls for the pouring of a 6-inch concrete slab reinforced with steel.

Thompson Bros., Brainerd, has the contract.

YOUTH CONFESSES THEFT, SWITCHING N. P. LAMP SIGNAL

CROSBY BOY TO BE BROUGHT BEFORE JUVENILE COURT; ARRESTED HERE

A 15 year old Crosby boy who confessed today the theft of $125 from the Northern Pacific section house at Louch and the turning to the red signal a switch lamp on the N. P. track at Klondyke, east of Brainerd, was in the city jail today as authorities prepared to bring him before Judge L. B. Kinder in juvenile court.

Carl Jacobson, special N. P. officer, arrested the boy in Brainerd last night and reported he had a complete confession from him today.

The youth was reported as running away from his home Monday afternoon, sleeping in the open that night and making friends with the section foreman and his wife Tuesday. When the section foreman and his wife went to Brainerd yesterday afternoon the youth took the screen off a window, entered and took a pocket-book from a bedroom dresser and a box of .22 caliber shells, Jacobson reported.

Firemen Test New Protection at Lum Park, O. K. Hydrant

Brainerd firemen tested the new fire hydrant in Lum Park Tuesday afternoon and found it capable to cope with any outbreak of fire in the park area. The flow of water tested 60 pounds service pressure and when speeded up by the truck pump registered 150 pounds pressure.

The hydrant was installed by the City Water and Light Department.

TEND TO DISPROVE SUICIDE THEORIES IN SMITH HEARING

NEIGHBOR TESTIFIES HER HUSBAND DETECTED ESCAPING GAS AT 3 A. M.

Evidence offered at the coroner's inquest at Minneapolis into the death by gas poisoning of John L. Smith, secretary of the Hennepin Savings and Loan association, today fixed the time when the gas was turned on and tended to disprove suicide theories, a United Press report says.

A neighbor of the Smiths, Mrs. B. H. Nelson, testified that her husband smelled escaping gas in his bedroom which is the width of a driveway from the Smith apartment. This happened at 3 a. m. on Sept. 23, she said.

Miss Florence Garvey, a sister of Mrs. Smith who found the bodies of Smith and her sister upon entering their home, testified that five windows were open when she entered the apartment.

Judge Charles B. Elliott, counsel for Smith, conceded that the handwriting on a card bearing the number of depositors accounts was that of John L. Smith but insisted that the number had been copied from a list of Lindsay S. Smith, his son, after discovery that the son had embezzled $300,000 from the association.

FOODS COOKED IN SMALL AMOUNTS USUALLY TASTE BEST

Hills Bros. Coffee Tastes Better Than Other Coffees Because It is Roasted in Small Quantities

Food cooked in small quantities has the advantage of exactness. The mixing and the application of heat can be accurately controlled. A three-egg omelet is invariably more tender and fluffy than one made of many eggs.

Coffee roasted in small quantities has the advantage of exactness too. Hills Bros. discovered the way to roast in small quantities—so that every pound is exactly alike—when they invented and patented Controlled Roasting.

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by Controlled Roasting—this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time. Every berry is perfectly done. A matchless flavor results—a flavor bulk-roasted coffee can't equal!

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans. Air, which makes coffee go stale, is removed and kept out of these cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. But Hills Bros. Coffee can't go stale. Order some today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

CELEBRATE JOINT
WED ANNIVERSARIES

45 Gather at Lake Home Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sabin

The lake home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sabin was the scene of a very happy gathering Sunday when they entertained at a chicken dinner for their parents who were celebrating their wedding anniversaries—the 30th for Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall and 32nd for Mr. and Mrs. Sabin. The 45 guests present were served the dinner at pleasantly decorated tables on the spacious porch. A coincidence of the occasion was that Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hall of Crosby, guests at this occasion were celebrating their 27th wedding day. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bedal, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stearns, Miss Bernice Janic, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hall of Brainerd, Mr. and Mrs. Walt Stearns and daughters Doris and Grace of Crosby, Mrs. Marion Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hettling of St. Paul, Miss Marion Hall of Detroit, Mich., Miss Janet Hall and Miss Clover Sabin of Minneapolis.

Both couples were presented with bounteous remembrances by their children and the day was a very delightful one to all present.

A School Bag to Make

Where Forests Grow

There once lived a man who owned a beautiful piece of land. This land was a plain surrounded by rolling hills. The slopes of the hills were covered in trees. There were Maples, proudly stretching their arms to give shade in the summer time and bits of bright color in the autumn; Sugar Maples, whose strong wood made fine furniture and whose sap supplied sugar. There were Birches, tall and white, that gleamed like ivory in the day time and became like slim ghosts at night; there were Elms whose graceful branches bent gently toward the ground and whose abundant foliage hid many a nesting bird; Dogwoods, whose snowy blossoms could be seen for miles around; Willows there were, too, with sad drooping branches waving and sighing in the wind; there were Chestnuts, whose nuts the children liked to gather; there were Aspens with silver tinted leaves, and on the tops of the hills were the kings of all, the Pines, through whose needles the winds whistled and sang strange songs. The man loved his hills and his trees better than anything else in the world. He liked to stand in the center of the plain and listen to the sounds they made gossiping together. But the day came when he had to sell his land to some one else. Many years passed. The man returned. Where, oh where, was his beautiful plain? Where were his trees, his shady, mossy slopes? The new owner had cut down the trees to sell them for lumber, for fuel and various other things. He had not cut them down slowly, one by one, planting new ones for those he cut away, but he had cut them all down at once. Rains came, storms and snows, and as the water poured down the slopes, having no tree roots to slow it down, having no leaves to shake the moisture gently on the ground, it washed the moss, the ferns, the very soil away along with it, leaving behind nothing but rock and waste. No longer did a thousand little streams bubble musically over spongy beds of leaves and moss where grew tiny and brilliant flowers. The man was very sad.

Then a boy asked him one day, "What are trees good for, anyway?" And the man said, "Without trees, my boy, cold and cruel winds would sweep across the country, making more freezing weather than we have ever known. Without them the ground would be scorched dry by the hot rays of the sun and plants could not grow. Without them, houses would be poor things, having little furniture. Ships would have no perfect masts. There would be very little paper for our books and news, very little fuel for our fires, no nuts, no fruits. Without them we would have to do without many valuable oils, many kinds of medicine. Without them snow on the hillsides would melt so fast that floods would rush down the slopes washing everything before them. Without trees the air would be too dry to breathe, for each one, full grown, gives off a whole ton of moisture in one day. Oh, without them the world would indeed be a dreary place."

Herd Lost in Fog
Mysterious "theft" of an entire herd of cattle from a ranch near Visalia, Calif., was explained when lifting fog revealed the cattle, 40 head, peacefully grazing in a near-by field. In much excitement the loss had been reported to the sheriff, who hurried to the ranch. He spent considerable time examining tracks until the fog rolled back and the cattle were seen. They had wandered through a break in the fence.

Ideas Worth Money

The hook and eye, the safety pin, the curling pin, the snap fastener, the screw stopper for bottles, the egg slicer, the apple corer—all these things which are used daily in tens of millions of homes throughout the world, which cost but a few cents to make, and a few more cents to buy—they have all been the result of a sudden idea, and they have nearly all made fortunes for their inventors.

38 MEN EITHER SENTENCED OR KILLED FOR PARTS IN STATE BANK RAIDS IN 2½ YEAR PERIOD

The Minnesota Bankers Association has wrapped up a bitter pill without sugar, that may produce some cerebral results in the minds of would be bank bandits.

Bank robbery in Minnesota is not healthy, according to a compilation of convictions and captures in connection with Minnesota bank robberies. In two and one-half years, the association said, 38 men have either been sentenced or killed for their parts in bank raids.

Every precaution Used

"Banks are using every precaution," George Susens, secretary of the association said, "to prevent burglaries and holdups and are keeping an absolute minimum of cash on hand, which means that the successful bandit gets very little for the risks he is taking. When compared to the sentence imposed if caught—life imprisonment in the state penitentiary—holding up a Minnesota bank is a poor risk. The cards are stacked against the bank bandit in Minnesota."

The following compilation was made by C. D. Brown, head of the protective division of the association.

In 1929 those jobs marked "closed" were:

St. Stephen, Minn.; St. Stephen State Bank, Louis Lancello, indeterminate sentence to St. Cloud reformatory for attempted burglary.

Sandstone, Security State Bank, Leo Eastman serving an indeterminate sentence at St. Cloud.

Elk River, First National Bank, Gus Becker, Pat Melvin and Roy Salmon, serving life sentences at Stillwater.

St. Michael, State Bank, Joe Hendricks and Earl Guy, serving life sentences at Stillwater.

Sentenced to Stillwater

St. Charles, First National Bank, Enselio Montejano, serving life sentences, Stillwater.

Meier Grove State Bank, Leo Humbert, serving a life sentence.

Cushing Farmers State Bank, Carl Gerlach, serving a life sentence at Stillwater, and Wilbur Simmons, sentenced to an indeterminate term at St. Cloud.

Savage First State Bank, Fred Seard, serving life at Stillwater.

Shakopee First National Bank, William McCusick, George Larkin and Fred McCusick, all serving life sentence at Stillwater.

1929 summary—Twelve serving life, three serving indeterminate sentences, and $12,432 recovered.

For 1930 the list is as follows:

St. Paul Payne Avenue State Bank, Joe Conroy and William Keller, serving life at Stillwater.

Sanborn Farmers State Bank, Nicholas Carey, to 5 to 40 years in Stillwater, and Jerome Buss, 35 years in the Wisconsin state penitentiary.

Robbinsdale Security State Bank, Gunnar Jacobson, killed as he fled.

Rapidan Farmers State Bank, Harvey Lindsay, five to 40 years in Stillwater.

Stanton State Bank, James Caldwell, five to 40 years at Stillwater.

Gets 5 to 40 Years

Judson Farmers State Bank, Lawrence Dagen, five to 40 years in Stillwater.

Meriden First State Bank, Fred Behr, five to 40 years in Stillwater.

Verdi State Bank, Harry Dietrich, five to 40 years in Stillwater.

Stockton Farmers State Bank, Bernard Flannigan and Victor Gage, both serving indeterminate sentences at the St. Cloud reformatory.

1930 summary—Two sentences to life imprisonment. Two killed, two serving from five to 40 years and two serving reformatory terms, $11,555 recovered.

The 1931 list follows:

Bakers State Bank, Jess Olds serving two to 10 years in Stillwater, Verlin Lee and Harold Sversovold, serving an indeterminate sentence at St. Cloud.

Harris State Bank, Bernard Blac-felner serving an indeterminate sentence at St. Cloud.

Hewitt First State Bank, Claude Watkins, Fay Watkins and Valto Watkins, all serving from two to 10 years in Stillwater.

Hardwick State Bank, Donald Reed, sentenced to life imprisonment and Leonard Jones serving 12 years in Stillwater.

French Millinery

Hats are tilted like Scotch caps and Agnes insists upon ribbons tied over one ear to keep them in balance.

The collections shown by Des-cat, Guy, Le Monnier, Mado and Valois stressed many velvet models. Patou's all-velvet ensembles have velvet hats and bags.

Felt hats are frequently trimmed with velvet bows and soft twists. The velvet ribbons which decorate them favor geranium, green, blue, capucine, rust and brown.

Colorful hats showing many striking combinations are presented. Mercury wings and fancy coq sweeps trim felts colorfully and picturesquely.

Empress Eugenie silhouettes are having much competition. Patou is working with the Renaissance idea of the small draped hat but has as well a number of new shapes which carry out the forward tilt movement of the 1930 boat shapes.

They're Misunderstood, Probe of Women Shows

Analysis by questionnaire of 1,700 young women, in an effort to find the basic truth about modern young womanhood, reveals that the whole 1,700—with one exception—felt themselves "misunderstood" by their parents. The single exception was a girl whose parents were deaf and dumb.

The result of the questionnaire is reported by the Woman's Home Companion, and the following comment is made on the attitude shown by modern girls toward their parents: "Next to generalizing from insufficient data the most popular human activity is being misunderstood. It is not peculiar to girls. All ages and both sexes practice it sedulously. The plain fact is that nobody is ever understood by anyone else. To be alive at all is to be misunderstood. Anybody who literally understood you would be precisely like you and what fun would there be in that? If young people cry out more often about this than their elders it is simply because they have not yet learned the futility of beating your wings against the golden cage of individuality."

Total Assets—One Small Daughter

By LEETE STONE

MARY BAIRD, "mother of the films"—Astoria, Long Island, where many creditors had been kind over many years, sat staring at the inevitable petition in bankruptcy which coldly listed her liabilities at $5,500, and her assets at $105. But the investigator had forgotten Doris, ten-year-old daughter of Mary Baird. At least he did not list her as an asset, which she was. However, that comes later.

Trouble looked Mary Baird square in the eyes. An invalid husband to feed, care for and nourish with the tenderness of true affection; three small children to look out for, the oldest of which was Doris. An apartment to pay rent for! Food to buy for five mouths! And Mary Baird was on the verge of forty-five. Small wonder that she sat before her mirror, combing out the beautiful silk-giver hair that had helped to win her her little title of "mother of the film," in an agony of doubt and distraction on that morning after the bankruptcy statement arrived.

Her mind centered on the kind, rather sorrowful smile of Frank Hanway, casting director at the studios a few blocks away—the look of tender concern he had bent on her just yesterday morning when she appeared in his office, as usual, at nine. He had said, as if he hated to say it:

"Sorry, Mary, my dear. There's not many 'mother' bits in the talkies, you know. If I can swing anything your way; trust me! I'll surely do it! How're the kids?"

"Fine, Frank—and thank you!" she had replied. Pride prevented her from confiding her straits to him. His hand would have gone down into his pocket to that ample roll of bills, and he would have forced a century note on her, out of the bluntness of his heart. Frank Hanway had known Mary Baird when she was an ingenue with a great future.

This morning her mind raced back to those gilded days of youth, when her mind was unhampered and unworried by lack of luxury and sincere acclaim. When stage was all legitimate! When the spell of personal appearance before an audience was unthreatened and, as it seemed to all, secure in its regal artistry.

Then, shortly after the "Great Train Robbery," pioneer moving picture, flickered its thrilling way across the crude screen of the Eden Musee in New York, Mary by reason of her fame received an enticing offer from the old Biograph studios on Fourteenth street. From then on she was a movie actress until her hair commenced to silver—flitting between Hollywood and New York. At last the reviews, fairly dripping with praise from celebrated critics, of her work as the mother in "Mountain Woman." From that day till this day, when she faced starvation and want, not only for herself, but for a beloved family, Mary Baird was ticketed in casting offices as the perfect "mother of the films."

But the advent of talking pictures had done away with many of the old revivals. Mother parts were few and far between.

So mused Mary Baird, facing the last ditch before destruction.

Her husband sighed and jerked in troubled sleep in the big bed in one of their two rooms. The younger children breathed peacefully, still asleep in the crib in the corner. Suddenly her terror at everything lighted on Doris, for whom she had made a few mouthfuls of the last of the oatmeal, and sent out to play an hour since. Where was Doris? The child never stayed out long, and it was two hours now since she had last seen her.

From the door at her back came a musical, throbbing voice, just like her own before tragedy had dulled its sweetness:

"Mother! I'm back!"
"Oh, sweetheart! I was worried."

You've been away a long time. Where were you?"

"I'll tell you, mother," the childish, precise tones in that voice which had once been her winged their way in magic directness into Mary Baird's sorrowful heart.

"I knew you were worried . . . about money. 'Member, mother, the day last week when we sat on the set of 'Home, Sweet Home,' together," the beautiful child's words rushed together in a torrent of loving confidence, "an' mother—that big man in the blue shirt that you said was the director? Well, he kept looking at me whenever I spoke to you. He's a beautiful man, mother." A pause.

"All right, dear—of course he's a beautiful man; but that doesn't tell me where you've been to make mother worry so."

"But you won't need to worry 'bout money any more, mother; 'cause I met him an' his little boy on the street this morning. We played together. An' this big director took me over to the studios an' made a test of my voice. He held me on his lap while he heard it run through, an' oh, mother! He told me to run straight home to you and tell you to bring me out right away to see Frank Hanway about a contract. He's got a star child part for me, he says, mother."

Mary Baird wasted no time in tears of happiness. Knowing great directors she rushed to the closet for Doris' best dress and proceeded to capitalize Lady Luck and her daughter Doris without delay.

OIL STATION FIRE IN N. E. BRAINERD CAUSES $250 LOSS

OPERATOR, AWAKENED BY THE CRIES OF FIRE, TURNS IN TELEPHONE ALARM

Awakened at 2 a. m. today by passersby who shouted "fire", Charles Hall jumped from his bed and turned in a telephone fire alarm to save the Sinclair Oil station he operated next door at 737 Third avenue, N. E.

Firemen confined the fire to the store room and rest rooms in the rear of the station. There was an estimated loss of $250.

Fire Chief Frank Fuller stated that the definite cause of the fire was undetermined, believing however that the blaze was caused by spontaneous ignition.

The building of frame construction is owned by George Senn.

U. S. Hospital Business in Big Industry Class

New York.—The rapid increase within recent years in the number and value of hospitals has tended to make the "hospital business" rank with the leading industries of the country. Sixty per cent of all hospital beds are controlled by federal, state and local governments and 28 per cent are owned by non-profit associations, while only 9 per cent are private business enterprises. The average investment per hospital is about $425,000.

I doubt whether the youngster of the future ever will see the enameled shoe, with the cloth top and buttons. I have not in years seen one of those derby hats with the practically flat crown. Ray Long insists that there was a man in Indianapolis who had one of those hats with a crown so shallow that he couldn't keep it on his head. He also had a watch chain with links of the size now used for small anchors. Girls in picture hats and ruffles thought it a very handsome ornament.

Yes, there are a number of things modern youth will never know. Quiet country roads are now wide strips of concrete or macadam. Billboards stand where tall trees once stretched their sheltering branches. The scent of wild flowers is lost in the odor of gasoline and oil. The horse is vanishing, but you never can put the whip in its socket, wrap the reins about it, and trust an automobile to keep the road.

WORLD FLIERS MAY PASS BRAINERD

This City on Direct Route if Post and Gatty Travel Shortest Route East

Braierd may get a chance to see Post and Gatty, world air girdlers, due at 5 p. m. today at Edmonton, Western Canada, when they race through the air in their powerful plane in the closing laps of the speedy flight around the world which promises to be crowned with success.

The two fliers will travel the shortest, most direct route. If they do not swerve it is possible that they will pass over Brainerd and the Lake Region.

A stop en route from Edmonton to New York, starting place, is promised at Cleveland, Ohio. A previous stop between Edmonton and Cleveland may be made. While no definite route of travel through the United States has been announced it is believed that the fliers will travel south of the Great Lakes.

Barring mishap, if the fliers came this way they would be in the lake region some time tomorrow afternoon.

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Consider the Garden of Eden. When that old serpent put Eve up to the idea of handing Adam an apple, he may have been doing them both a good turn — for where would we be today, ladies and gentlemen, without our Adam's Apple. If we didn't have our Adam's Apple, we couldn't sing, we couldn't even speak. For your Adam's Apple is your Larynx — your voice box — it contains your vocal chords. So — Consider your Adam's Apple. Be careful in your choice of cigarettes. Remember — the serpent in the smokers' Garden of Eden — harsh irritants are present in all raw tobaccos. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead. Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" Process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say, "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Government Inspection--

Tomorrow marks the 25th anniversary of Federal meat inspection and during that time more than 1,600,000,000 animals have passed under the observation of government employes in their efforts to guard the public against the use of diseased or animals unfit for food. At the time the service was inaugurated there was loud lamentation on the part of packers and producers, but both sides have finally come to see that the public has deep interest in being served proper food and that the public is entitled to the protection of Federal stamped meat on all carcasses intended for transportation outside the state where animals are killed.

All slaughtering and meat packing establishments doing a substantial inter-state business operate under Federal supervision, but those selling their product wholly within the state are not required to comply with inspection rules. The local market man and the farmer who dresses his own animals do not come under the provisions of the Federal law, but many buyers demand that the inspector's brand be shown them stamped on the body of the animal from which they are buying their Sunday dinner. Those who are not so particular may be served any sort of meat which appeals to them as looking all right.

Without going into details the writer has observed meat from infected animals which would certainly not find a market if the buyer knew the condition of the animal from which the meat was cut. Poultry, too, is often marketed in poor condition, aside from age, and other food products are placed before the people in an enticing way, even if it is not always fit for food. We often think that inspection is unnecessary and expensive, but if we knew the causes which actuated authorities in compelling certain standards in foods we would cease to wonder and exclaim at the added cost which proper supervision entails.

Riches Ruined Him--

Luke Lea, senator from Tennessee, has been convicted by a jury of his peers and sentenced to prison for a term of years. The sentence reads six to ten years, but the length of the term has little to do with the real punishment of a man like Lea. His past has been one long triumph and he has been honored by his constituents at every opportunity; he was a man of brilliant mind, well fitted to serve his people and grace every position to which they elected him.

But he lost all in his chase for riches, though already wealthy not only in dollars but by every other standard of measurement. He was a southern gentleman, suh, with a master's degree from the University of the South, a law degree from Columbia. He became publisher of an influential newspaper at the age of twenty-six, at thirty-two a United States senator, elected and recognized as a progressive from one of the old conservative southern states. The Distinguished Service Medal for heroism in France found a resting place on his bosom, President Roosevelt was proud to call him friend and he was an honored member of nearly every fraternal organization in the country.

Personal charm, belonged to Luke Lea in unusual degree and even his bitterest enemies succumbed to his engaging personality. His family relations were all that were to be desired, but he sacrificed character, reputation, friends and family in his pursuit of the almighty dollar, a pursuit which led him into devious ways and finally to the penitentiary.

Lea and his closest friends may charge persecution but the truth is that Lea reaped just as he sowed.

Paul G. Redington, who is the government representative over the game and fish preserves of the United States, is emphatic in his demands for protection this year against indiscriminate killing of wild fowl. He was invited to investigate the breeding grounds of ducks and geese in those Canadian provinces where there are usually millions of water fowl and reports that "in this vast region the breeding season of 1931 was almost a complete failure." Unwarranted statements that migratory birds have found other breeding grounds are wholly without foundation in fact, according to Mr. Redington, so that preservation of this form of wild life is simply up to the hunter and good sportsman who refrain from all unnecessary slaughter.

According to Gene Tunney, premier prize fighter of the world, Russia has discarded all forms of religion and refers to religious beliefs as forms of superstition. He went to Russia to study that nation at first hand and with the hope that he would find much to commend, but is horrified at some of the things which are quite common under soviet rule. On one hill near a big iron furnace he claims to have seen 600,000 tons of church bells, icons, candelabra and other articles used in worship assembled for melting into cannons, implements, etc. Morals, as we understand the term, are wholly lacking, yet there are some who believe that the lot of the Russian is better than our own. Or is it only a pretense with a lot of our own people?

We have the word of Senator Shipstead that "all the difficulties of the present time are traceable to policies instituted fifteen years ago. These policies were of such nature that they could have produced nothing but the existing depression. In the main the policies stimulated a program based on wide-spread creation of debt and installation of credit." Yet Shipstead and his colleagues failed in their duty in that they gave warning fifteen years after the event.

Bank robbers are not very fortunate in their calling if they are to be judged by the number of convictions and killings which seem to be their lot in this vicinity. Minnesota, Iowa and other states in this section pursue the bank robber without let-up, secure plenty of convictions and some slayings and just now are trying the men alleged to have been in the bank hold-up at Lincoln, Neb., a year or more ago.

The administration has been feeling the public pulse to find the reaction to a proposed tax sale charge. The pulse jumped so badly that all plans for giving the public the dose have been abandoned.

The government's case against the Foshay institution will close today after almost a month of testimony. Altogether too long a trial to secure a conviction.

'Knot-Tiers' Incorporated New Blow at Depression

How Five Marrying Justices of Jeffersonville Solved Problem of Competition, Long Hours and Fewer Marriages

When the decline of the marriage rate, due to the scarcity of money, began to inflict hardship on the five marrying justices of Jeffersonville, the Gretna Green of Southern Indiana, they decided that it was time to introduce big business methods into their trade of launching Cupid's victims on the sea of matrimony. The five formed a merger and opened one consolidated "marriage parlor" at the Indiana approach to the new Louisville Bridge over the Ohio River. The new arrangement has proved a great success, giving the "trust" a monopoly on the Jeffersonville marriages and enabling it to boost the matrimonial fees from $2.50 to $5, as well as cutting the overhead by four-fifths. Photo shows the members of the unique trust. Left to right are Benson Veasey, John M. Madden, Ryan Gannon, William Dorsey and Clarence Parsley. Lower panel shows one of the partners outside the marriage mill on the lookout for customers.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Sept. 29.—With the exception of the undertaking business, there is hardly a trade that one can think of that has not been detrimentally affected by the Spectre Depression. And even that would not be an exception if it weren't for the fact that people will persist in dying—whether their financial circumstances permit a limousine with liveried flunkies or whether they are reduced to living on hope and an unquenchable curiosity as to what is going to happen next.

In common with every other business, the marrying trade has suffered. The power of Cupid has waned in proportion to the scarcity of the dollar and the marriage rate has reached a new low. Here in Jeffersonville, Southern Indiana's Gretna Green, the situation was nothing short of acute for a time. That is, until a way was found to hit back at Old Man Depression. There were five justices in this thriving town, whose specialty was the launching of couples on the sea of matrimony, and when Cupid first began to pull his punches competition became very keen between them. Customers for the knot-tying ceremony became so scarce that each of the marrying magistrates was compelled to work 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in order to make ends meet. Not only that but each had to employ "barkers," or runners, who solicited the patronage of altar-bound couples.

Things were bad and the justices knew it. They agreed that something must be done, so they got together and talked over their difficulties. The result of the pow-wow was the formation of what is probably the most unique merger in the history of the United States, and instead of there being five marriage mills in Jeffersonville there is now only one consolidated nuptial parlor and it is located at the Indiana approach to the new $5,000,000 Louisville municipal bridge over the Ohio River. The merger of the five marrying justices was a stroke of genius. Not only did it give the "trust" a monopoly on the marriage business in Jeffersonville, but it cut the overhead by four-fifths, there now being only one establishment where the knot is tied.

Not only that, but the Big Five were able to boost the marriage fee from the former $2.50 to $5, and whereas before the consolidation each member of the combine had to work seven days a week now each works two days in turn. Thus it can be seen that the efficient methods of big business may be successfully applied to situations hitherto undreamed of.

Most popular of all the girl strips--

"BOOTS and her BUDDIES"

THE most attractive looking comic in the country and the clear favorite among all the so-called "girl strips."

One reason why "Boots and Her Buddies" is always a front runner when newspaper polls are held is that Edgar E. Martin is one of the few comic artists who know how to draw a beautiful girl. He knows what the modern girl wears and dresses Boots accordingly. And he provides a daily laugh in the bargain.

"Boots and Her Buddies" is the clear-cut proof that a comic strip need not be grotesque in order to be funny. The daily doings of the blond and beautiful, the gay and irrepressible Boots are the main spot in the day's news for a mighty host of readers.

The East Makes a Discovery

It begins to appear as though the pessimism bubble constructed for political reasons has exploded, says the Winona Republican-Herald. Eastern writers have just discovered, current publications would indicate, that the Northwest is not bankrupt, and that farmers behind the vast depression smokescreen have been making real progress toward solving their agricultural problems and at the same time have talked congress into giving them some real aid.

"While the politicians have been energetically house-topping the bad news about agriculture being sick in bed, farmers have been hard at work," one writer summarizes it. "Proceeds of their toil enables them to spend a half billion dollars a year for automobiles. A third of all farm homes have radio... more than a sixth have electric lights; nearly four-fifths of the total value of farms are wholly free from mortgage indebtedness. Sixty-four per cent of all individual farms are without a mortgage."

This may be surprising to the east but locally it has no thrill, except to those individuals who use the Wall street stock market listing as a gauge to business. The local observer has known that the extensive diversified farming, the development of cooperatives, and the political smoke screen thrown up by the Northwest congressional delegation have had the alleged depression licked for nearly a year in the Northwest, and it was purely a matter of time until the panicky east would wake up and begin buying. Once this occurs the Northwest stands ready to supply all agricultural needs. Buyers will again strengthen the price scale.

Meantime as E. A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau association, stated today at the Farm Bureau picnic: "Agriculture has through its cooperative marketing established a real solution for its future problems."

Cautions for Swimmers

In the past two days at Lum park during this heat wave five people have been assisted from the water. While none of these cases have been of serious nature, yet it definitely shows the lack of thought on the part of people using the water.

A warning to parents: Do not let your small children of two or three years old play on the beach without a person definitely in charge of them. A near accident which would have wrecked some household in Brainerd was avoided Sunday when some boys called to Earl R. Berg, water safety director engaged by the Red Cross, who was on duty all day Sunday and pointed to a little girl about three years old who had slipped from the dock. A little water and a good scare was the outcome, yet it showed how easy an accident could happen.

A warning to all children: Leave your inner tubes at home. They will not be tolerated. They are dangerous in many ways and will not be allowed at the park. If you can swim you don't need them and if you can't it is time you learned how.

Another warning: Do not swim out from shore but swim along with it. The whistle means something and people are expected to heed it. It is a method of safety. It may mean many things and people using the beach are asked to give their attention when they hear it.

Cooperation during open swimming periods has been asked for. Mr. Berg is trying to make a safe and enjoyable swimming place for everyone in this community but it can only be done with the cooperation of all Brainerd.

The Fat Man

It may be true, as Maclyn Arbuckle used so soulfully to sigh, that nobody loves a fat man, says the Omaha World-Herald. But anyhow, nobody is indifferent to him. Someone is always picking on him, giving him advice, trying to explain his plumpness, especially the doctors. They seem to assume that stoutness, if it isn't a crime, is at least a misfortune, something like the punishment administered to the children for the sins of the fathers. Only they refuse to accept any hereditary alibi.

A University of Michigan medical man says fatness is one's own fault. It is caused by eating too much. That's all the explanation there is. The finality of this seems to dispose of any inferences that we might be disposed to draw from the ancient admonition to "laugh and grow fat."

But why so much attention devoted to the fat man and so little or none at all the skinny man? Are all the dietary misdeeds committed on the side of overeating and none at all through under-eating? So far as we can recollect nobody has shown much concern about the thin man since Shakespeare's Julius Caesar was worried about the "lean and hungry Cassius."

A good deal of thought, it is true, is devoted to the underweight child. But as soon as he grows up interest in him ceases unless he gets fat.

You Can Now Confess in Safety

THE supreme court of Minnesota reverses a Minneapolis judge, who held a minister in contempt because he refused to divulge a confession made to him as pastor, says the St. Cloud Daily Times. The last session of the legislature enacted a law giving protection to clergymen in holding confessions sacred, and not to be disclosed without consent of the party making the confession.

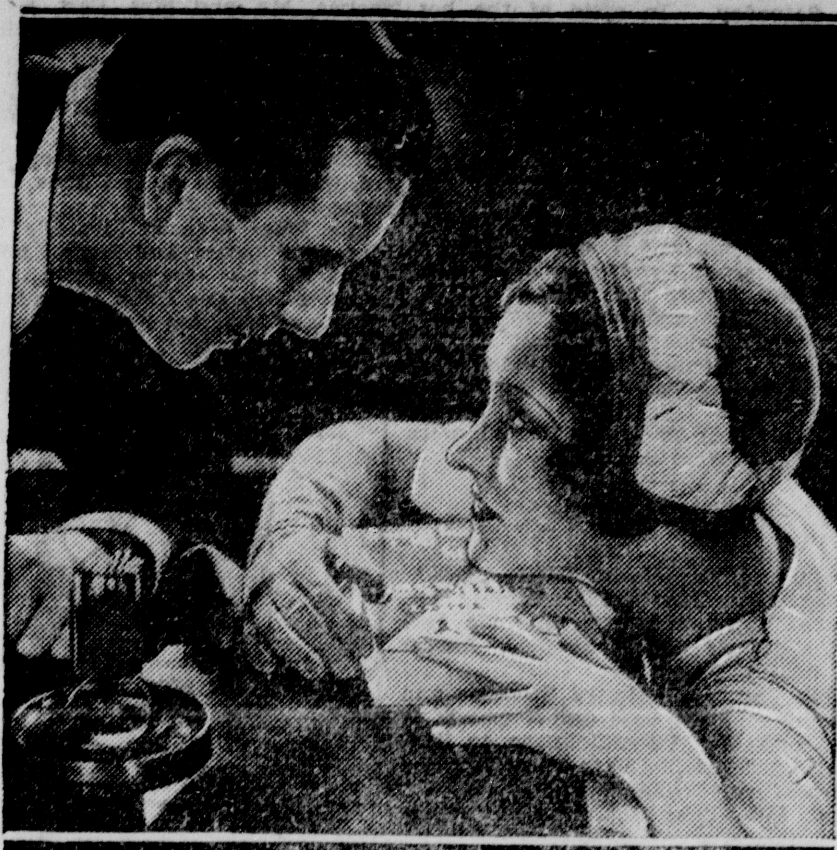

The case before the courts was started before the enactment of this specific law, but the supreme court found a previous one that it held to give this protection.

The action of the Minneapolis court outraged public sentiment, and the decision of the higher court will be heartily approved. This relieves the clergy for being stool pigeon for the police.

A Safe and Sane Fourth

THE signers of the Declaration of Independence probably did not figure that their guaranteed "pursuit of happiness" would ever lead to blindness, permanent injuries and death in commemorating the freedom for which they fought so valiantly.

While much progress has been achieved in awakening our nation to a realization that fireworks if carelessly used are synonymous with suffering, sorrow, expense and endless regrets, the "safe and sane Fourth" idea can still be improved upon. The National Safety Council estimates that there were approximately 30 fireworks fatalities throughout the country during the 3-day holiday period last year. This figure is low when compared with the gruesome fireworks record of years gone by, or with the motor vehicle deaths on the Fourth during recent years.

"Rump Parliaments"

The expression a "rump parliament" has grown to mean a parliament which no longer represents the will of the majority of the people. The famous rump parliament in English history was the long parliament, after it was purged by Pride of all but the independents in 1648.

Young and wealthy Dave Ordway's plane crashes in the Florida groves of Joan Marbury. Joan, assisted by her cousin, Sally, has difficulty in running the plantation due to financial straits. Damage to the property following Joan's repulsion of the advances of Mueller, neighboring planter, adds to the hardships. Dave is held up and robbed by Mueller when he refuses Mueller's exorbitant demands for damage to his trees when Dave's plane swooped to a landing. That night, Mueller sets fire to the plane. A fight ensues and Joan rescues Dave from Mueller. Later, Dave's former fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him. Instant antagonism is aroused between Barbara and Joan. Mueller calls and orders Dave and the boys out of the country. Gerry identifies Mueller as snatch Cazzoni, a bootlegger.

I suppose every boy has to pet so many girls before he's ready to settle down. So go ahead and have your fling. I'll try not to notice it. And go along with Gerry and Talbot and have your fight with that Mueller person. Beat him up or get yourselves beaten up. It will be good for you. You've always had to have a fight now and then to keep happy. But do you think you'd be content tied to life with either of these babes in the jungle here? She laughed shortly. "What do they know of the things you'd like? Why, I'll bet they think that bacarat is just another rum cocktail!"

Dave did not laugh with her. She caught her breath and went on recklessly.

"Perhaps I am a habit with you, Davey. Perhaps you're a habit moon on the kumquat grove over there, Sally," he said.

Barbara shook off his arm impatiently and strode into the house. "Are you engaged to that girl?" asked Sally, abruptly. "She's the rudest thing I've ever seen in all my life."

Victim of Wealth

"You'll have to make allowances for her, Sally," said Dave. "She's a product of her environment. She's the only child of a father who thinks the surest cure for anything is a whopping big check. She's always been spoiled by her father and by all her friends, too. We're used to her tantrums and don't pay any attention to them. They're just Barbara, that's all. When she wants to sulk we let her and it doesn't bother anybody."

"Sorry to interrupt," said Sally Stepping Out Onto the Porch.

with me. But after fifteen years of knowing each other—"

"That's just it, Babs," he said wearily. "We've known each other for fifteen years. At the end of that time you tell me that I'm a selfish pig for not wanting to go to the Riviera again next month. Well, maybe I am, but so far as I'm concerned, I never want to see France again. I've put up with French surliness and French petty thievery long enough. But just because I don't rush to engage passage on the Bremen the instant you suggest it, you fly into one of your rages and send your maid with a letter giving me my conge. Well, like the fourth or fifth attempt at vaccination, this time it took. I think a whole heap of you, Babs, but I don't love you and I don't think I ever did. You're one of the nicest kids I ever knew and we've had a world of fun together, but we couldn't hit it off if we were married."

Jealous Tongue

"You've let these flipperty gibbets turn your head!" Barbara blurted. She drew a deep breath. "Well, go ahead and play. You're just a blind fool. That Sally is just a little gold-digger. All she wants is somebody to take her out of this wretched place and—"

"Sorry to interrupt," said Sally, stepping out on to the porch. "I'm one of your specialties the analysis of character, Miss Holworthy?"

Barbara whirled to face the advancing girl. Dave placed a restraining hand on her arm. "We were just admiring the

NIMRODS POISED FOR MONTH OF DUCK SHOOTING ON LAKES

NOON TOMORROW WILL FIND
HUNDREDS OF HUNTERS IN THIS VICINITY

Although many streams and lakes have dried up this summer hundreds of hunters will be out at noon Thursday to shoot their limit of ducks.

The accounting department of the Minnesota Game and Fish Department could make no estimate of the number of licenses sold this year but said that the number was expected to total almost as many as last. Last year 183,567 small game resident licenses were sold and 259 non-resident licenses.

Many lakes in southern Minnesota have become merely black bogs with only a few inches of water in them if any. At Fairmont ten lakes have been reported dry. The upper of the Minnesota river is not flowing, and small pools of brackish water is found in the eddies and bends of the stream. Hunters believe that the northern flight may follow the Mississippi river and lakes in the Brainerd vicinity, and have prepared themselves to greet the early green and blue wing teal, the mallards and pintails with loaded shot guns.

In the northern Minnesota waters hunting should be almost as good as previous years, as most of the lakes have held their levels through the dry season. The swamps in northern Canada, the natural nesting ground for ducks, have been reported dry, which was one of the arguments used for shortening the hunting season for this fall. Where sloughs and swamps have not dried, local birds will be shot, but late season game bags which are made largely from northern birds will not be as large this year, it is expected.

The season which opens tomorrow will continue until sunset Oct. 31. 12 ducks may be taken on any one day and the limit for the season is 120 birds.

The season on squirrels opens Oct. 15 to Jan. 1, and pheasants from Oct. 17 to 23.

Activities of 4-H Clubs Head Farm Bureau Events of Week

The Nisswa 4H club met at the Nisswa schoolhouse on September 16. There were 12 club members present at the meeting, and each one gave a short talk on their project. Elsie Linn, the school teacher at Nisswa, gave each one of the club members a treat because they had worked so hard for their first year in 4H club work.

Their next 4H club meeting will be held at the school on Wednesday, September 30, and at that time each member is requested to put on some little stunt of some sort.

4-H Club Members Submit Songs

At the beginning of the 4H club year, each club was asked to compose an original song in regard to 4H club work in the county. The song contributed by the Lake Edward 4H club was selected as the first best, and the song from Oak Hill 4H club as second best. The following are the two songs:

(Tune—"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp.")
4H clubs are here today
To join in some work and play,
And we all expect to have a lot of fun.
All the work we'll gladly share,
And divide the play up fair,
Now we'll all dig in and do our very best.

Chorus:
Head and Heart and Hand and Health,
Are the things we're working for,
And we'll do our very best
Does not matter what the tasks,
We shall finish them, and do our very best.

Sewing, Gardening, Calf, and Chicks
Are some projects we may take,
And the knowledge you may gain is wonderful.

There are prizes you may win,
And trips that you may get,
If you do your very best and do it right.

Chorus: (Again)
(By the Lake Edward 4H club)

(Tune—"I've Been Working on the Railroad.")

Crow Wing County 4H club work
That is where we shine,
Pigs and calves and many baby lambs,
Bread and cakes so fine,
Sewing, canning and our gardens
Keep us busy, too,
When we're working on our projects,
We just can't feel blue.

(By the Oak Hill 4H club.)

4H Club Rally

Saturday at Brainerd
4H club Rally Day will be held at the Farmers' Room, Court House, Brainerd, starting at 1:30 p. m., Saturday, November 14. All leaders, both Senior and Junior and all 4H club members in Crow Wing county are urged to attend this event. A lunch will be served after the meeting. T. A. Erickson, State Club Leader, has been asked to be here to talk at that time. Members who won trips and special distinction during the year will give short talks. The Deerwood Commercial Club will present the silver cup to the outstanding 4H club of the county at this time also.

TWO PICK LOCK AND ESCAPE CONDEMNED LITTLE FALLS JAIL

PRISONERS HUNTED TODAY;
ONE INMATE TURNS DOWN
CHANCE TO ESCAPE

County authorities today sought to trace two men who broke out of the Morrison county jail last night. The jail was condemned this year and will be replaced by a new one by next spring.

Lloyd Johnson, Minneapolis, 36, held for assault, and Edward Briggs, 19, arrested for burglary in Motley, were the men who escaped by picking a lock and jimmying a window.

Another inmate of the jail did not follow Johnson and Briggs to freedom.

Foolishness of God Greater Than Wisdom of Man, Preacher Says

The revival services at the Full Gospel Assembly with Rev. Louis O. Rynning as the evangelist are making splendid progress. Rev. Rynning preached to an interested audience last evening, taking his text from 1st Cor. 1:25 "The Foolishness of God is Wiser Than Men."

He stated that God did many things seemingly foolish to the natural man and yet always accomplished His purpose. The evangelist used as illustrations the taking of Jericho by the Israelites by Gideon's three hundred, and how the actions of the children of Israel in both cases seemed foolish and yet won great victories through obedience to God. He then stated that no matter how foolish God's plan may seem, obedience to God would always bring blessing.

The evangelist will speak for ten minutes in the Norwegian language this evening in addition to the regular service in English. Tomorrow evening there will be another Divine Healing service.

CHANNEL MARKERS

IN THE earlier days of this country, spending the family budget used to be a hazardous business. It was only by harsh experience that a householder learned to steer clear of bad bargains and come into port with his money's worth.

There were snags and shoals aplenty. Inferior goods and unscrupulous merchandising methods made the channel dangerous. "Let the buyer beware" was an accepted slogan of trade.

Fortunately for millions of consumers, this condition has wholly changed in more recent years. The channel has been charted. Today advertised, trade-marked goods of known value are for sale in every city and hamlet. The buyer knows he can trust such products. He reads the advertisements in his paper, chooses the commodities he needs, and makes his purchases with the knowledge that he will get full value for his outlay.

The advertising columns of this newspaper point the way to satisfaction. If you make it a habit to read them daily you will save money, and save time.

Advertising is your guide to safe buying

BOHMER, MOYNIHAN CONTESTING FOR MINNIE CENTRAL TITLE

BOHMER WINS FROM TALLMAN 3 AND 2 WITH 73

WALTER MOYNIHAN DEFEATS SEWELL WILSON OF BEMIDJI 5 AND 4

MISS EDITH KIERLAND, ALEXANDRIA, PREDICTED WINNER OF WOMEN'S TITLE

The final championship play for the Central Minnesota Golf Association title started at 2 P. M. today with Don Bohmer of St. Cloud and Walter Moynihan, Sauk Center, teeing off.

In the morning's play Bohmer won 3 and 2 from D. N. Tallman of Willmar, tying the course record with a 73. He scored 36 out and 37 in.

Moynihan defeated Sewell Wilson of Bemidji 5 and 4. His mark was 75, being 38 out and 37 in.

Bohmer was 2 up at the 9th hole and 3 up at the 10th. Bohmer went out in 36 which is one under par.

Moynihan was 5 up on Wilson at the 9th hole. Moynihan shot a 38 out. He was one under par for the last nine holes.

In the women's championship play, Miss Edith Kierland, Alexandria, was 5 up on Miss Irene Moynihan of Sauk Center at the turn. Miss Moynihan wavered and was three-putting at every green.

In spite of hot weather a good gallery manifested its interest in the Central Minnesota golf tournament yesterday by following the principals about the Pine Beach course and applauding good plays. A light breeze prevailed. Reviewing the championship flight:

The match between Don Bohmer of St. Cloud and Joseph Ryan of Brainerd, medalist, was a close one and at the 15th hole Bohmer had Ryan two down with one to go.

The contest between Walter Moynihan of Sauk Center, former title holder, with J. C. Jewett of Bemidji, was that of a youthful opponent against middle age. Jewett made a commendable fight and the match ran to the 17th hole, Moynihan winning, two down and one to go.

D. N. Tallman, winner of many tournament plays, faced a fellow townsman, J. N. Nichols of Willmar, and won 4 and 3. Tallman is a wonderful competitive player and his experience counted heavily.

Sewell Wilson of Bemidji defeated J. S. Lewis of Brainerd 5 and 4. In the first nine holes the two ran even. On the second nine Lewis had trouble with his wodo shots and the match ended on the 15th green.

Opinion is divided as to who will win the tournament. Some think Moynihan will add another title to his belt, others think Bohmer is due for brilliant play, and still others think the veteran Tallman may achieve victory.

The women's playing was interesting. It is the second year of such play, which started at Bemidji. It will be a final contest between Edith Kierland of Alexandria and Irene Moynihan of Sauk Center, both experienced golfers.

The Central Minnesota Golf Association accepted the invitation of the Alexandria Country club to hold next year's tournament at Alexandria. The 18-hole grass greens at Alexandria have a wide reputation. Officers of the association elected were President Earl Best and Secretary Leland Wright, both of Alexandria.

A vote of thanks was accorded the St. Cloud Country Club, hosts of the tournament at the Pine Beach course.

The date of the 1932 tournament was left to the discretion of the Alexandria club.

ACE HUDKINS IS 6 TO 5 FAVORITE IN LEVINSKY FIGHT

Chicago, June 30.—(U.P.)—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska "wildcat," comes out of retirement tonight, 6 to 5 favorite over King Levinsky. Whether he will remain out of retirement depends largely on the success of tonight's battle, which will be his first in several months. Hudkins weighed 172 today and Levinsky 181. The match is a scheduled 10-rounder and was expected to draw a record crowd for an outdoor fight in Chicago.

GEORGE BLAKE OF LOS ANGELES TO REFEREE FIGHT

2 RINGSIDE JUDGES AND ALTERNATE REFEREE TO BE NAMED SOON

YOUNG STRIBLING TO WIN BY A KNOCKOUT, SAYS HIS DAD

Cleveland, June 30.—(U.P.)—George Blake of Los Angeles today notified the Cleveland boxing commission he would accept the offer made him to referee the Max Schmeling-W. L. Stribling heavyweight title fight Friday night.

The Los Angeles official, in communication with the commission over long distance telephone, said he would start for Cleveland immediately, taking an airplane part of the way. He was expected to arrive Thursday.

The commission named Blake, the manager of Fidel La Barba, from a list of 39 nominees after several days of debate. Two ringside judges and an alternate referee also were appointed. Their identities will be kept secret until a short time before the fight.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geauga Lake, O., June 30.—With his chance at the heavyweight championship just three days away, W. L. (Young) Stribling has a vague, detached air of a disinterested party about him.

To watch Stribling as he moves about his camp, one would hardly believe he was getting ready to fight Max Schmeling for a title. The Georgian boy is easily the calmest person in the camp over the impending battle—the big chance of his career.

There were a couple of newspaper men at his cottage last night talking about the fight Friday night with Pa and Ma Stribling, and Gene Lutz, the veteran trainer and race horse man. Did Stribling have anything to say about the fight?

Not a word. He came into the room after seeing a double-header baseball game between the Yankees and Indians, peeled off his shirt, picked up a book entitled "Shackles of Flesh," and stretched out on couch to read.

"They picked George Blake to referee," said Pa. "You remember him, don't you, W. L.?"

"Yep, he's all right," replied W. L. not even looking up from his book.

"How does the fight look?" Pa Stribling was asked.

"W. L. is in shape for a big fight for the first time in his life," he replied. "If Schmeling defeats him it'll be just because the German is a better man than W. L."

"What kind of a fight does Stribling plan to make?"

"He's going to try to win by a knockout if he can, but what W. L. does depends upon what kind of a fight Schmeling fights."

"There's one thing I want to tell you newspaper fellows," snapped Ma. "My boy is not yellow, and I don't want any of you to say he is."

"Don't you think there is some chance that your boy might lose this fight? What would he do if Schmeling knocked him down?"

"Last time he was knocked down he laughed and winked at us in his corner," replied Ma.

Stribling has been knocked down by fair punches three times—by Billy Conley when the Georgian was a middleweight in 1924, by Jack League in 1929 and by Primo Carnera in their second fight at Paris in 1929.

"W. L. has never been anywhere near knocked out," said Pa. "After League floored him he got up and knocked him down in the same round. W. L. knocked Carnera down, and when he got up the big Italian rushed in like a wild bull and half pushed and shoved my boy down while he had his arms at his sides and couldn't defend himself."

TWO SOUTH TEAMS TO CLASH TOMORROW

SOUTH SIDE TO TRY FOR CLEAN RECORD, SOUTHEAST EXPECTS VICTORY

South Side and Southeast meet tomorrow in a city league baseball game promising the most exciting clash of the season so far.

South Side will be out to keep its record clean while their opponents will give their strongest efforts to break into the win column. The former will have Franks and Roddall doing battery duty while Whitlock and Schwendeman will work for Southeast. Thursday night Northeast and Y. M. C. A. will oppose each other in a league game. They are tied for second place with a win and a loss each.

SAINTS OUST BREWERS FROM LEADERSHIP

LOUISVILLE COLONELS, IDLE YESTERDAY, DROP INTO SECOND PLACE

(By United Press)

St. Paul today ousted Milwaukee from leadership of the American association, while the Louisville Colonels, by virtue of yesterday's idleness, went into second place, leaving Minneapolis and Milwaukee in a virtual tie for third.

St. Paul defeated Milwaukee, 9 to 5. The winners scored six runs in the first inning to pile up a lead that Milwaukee could not overcome.

The tallender Kansas City nine came to life to defeat Minneapolis, 7 to 4. Bayne held the Millers to six hits and turned them back in one, two, three order after the third inning when they scored three times.

Indianapolis defeated Columbus, 13 to 6.

The scheduled Louisville-Toledo game had been played Sunday as part of a doubleheader.

Games today:
Kansas City at St. Paul.
Milwaukee at Minneapolis.
Louisville at Columbus.
Indianapolis at Toledo.

INDIANS BOOK 2 HOLIDAY GAMES

PLAY K. P. NINE JULY 4, PINE CENTER, JULY 5; LOSE FIRST GAME TO SOUTH LONG

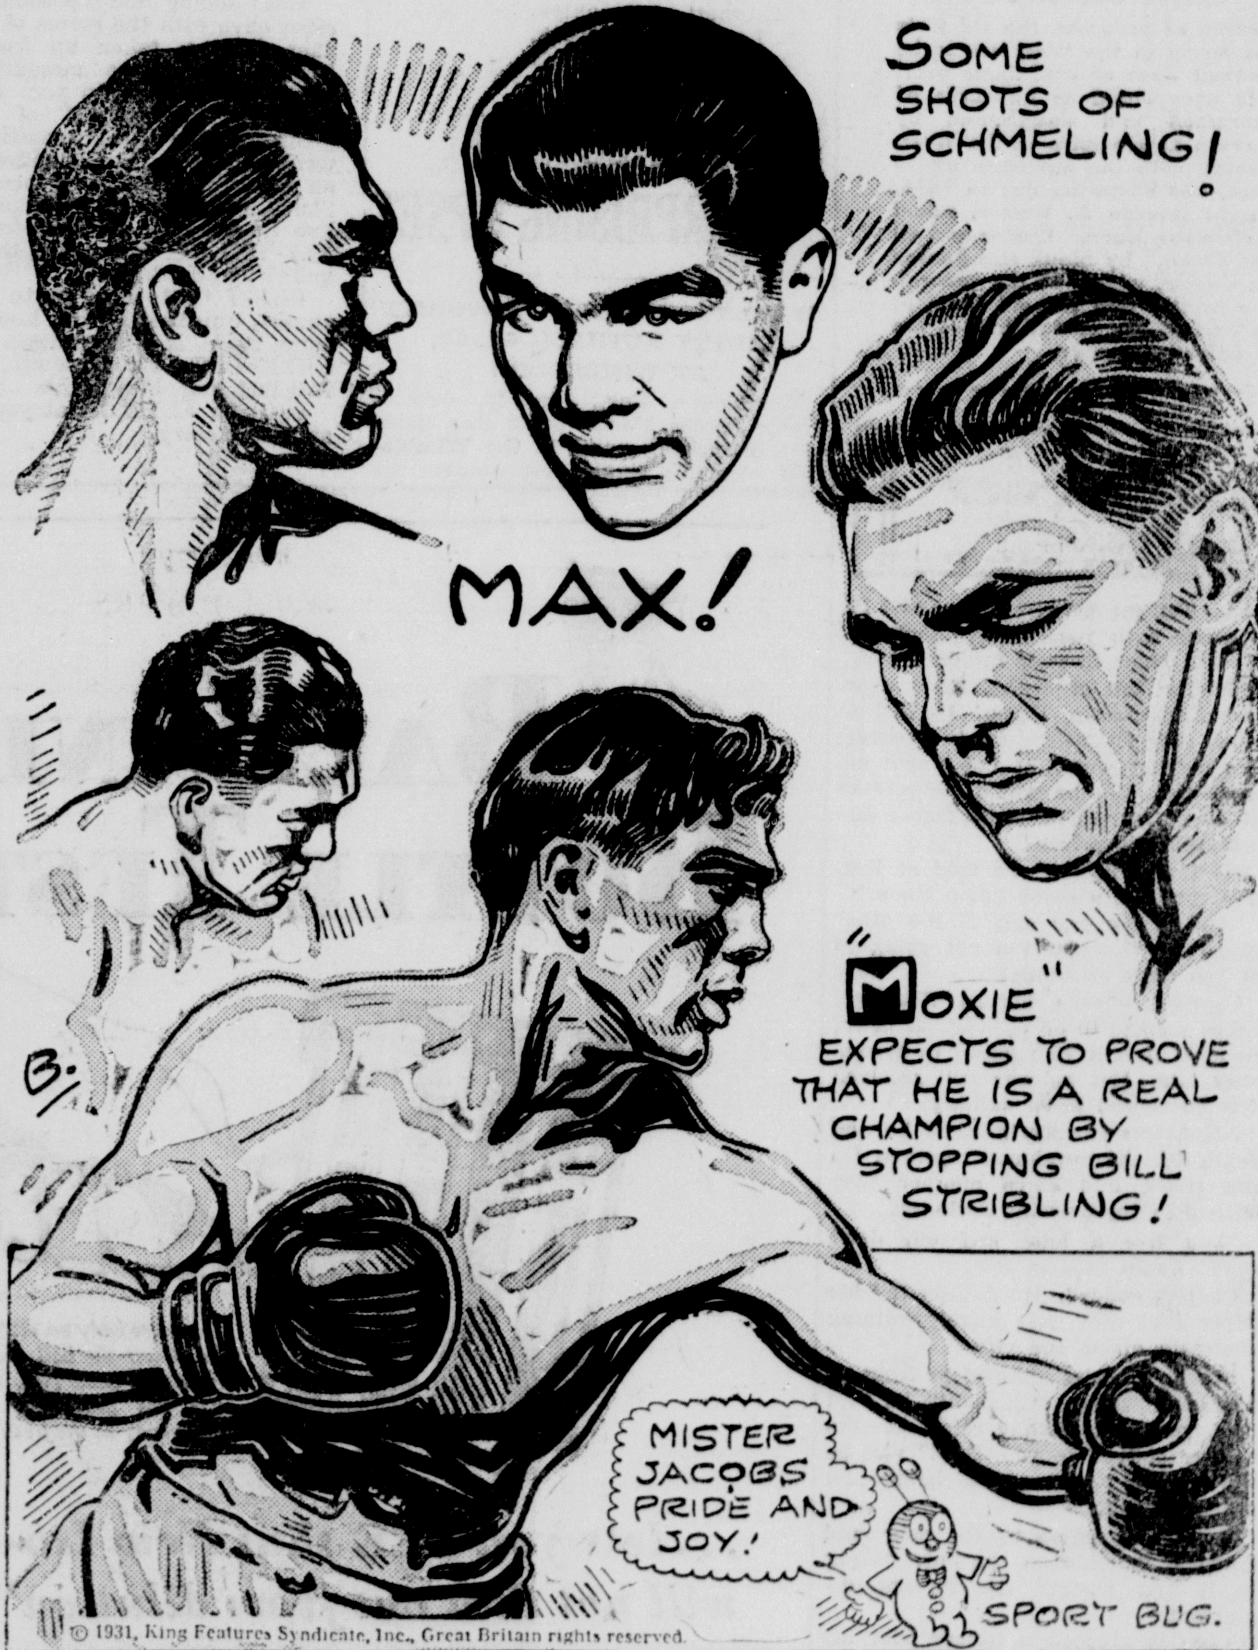

The Chippewa ball team planned several workouts this week preparatory to the game with the Knights of Pythias club of Brainerd July 4 and with the Pine Center team July 5.

The All Indian team from Mille Lacs Lake lost their first game of the season Sunday to the South Long Lake aggregation, 11 to 7.

Both games over the holidays will take place on the Garrison diamond.

Ready for Title Test

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THESE are days when I'll Joe Jacobs, who yelled his Max Schmeling into that foul world's championship a bit more than a year ago, must be chewing up those giant cigars of his by the box. For on Friday night Cho's Champ is to defend the title in a 15-round bout with William L. Stribling at the huge and handsome open air stadium in Cleveland, O.

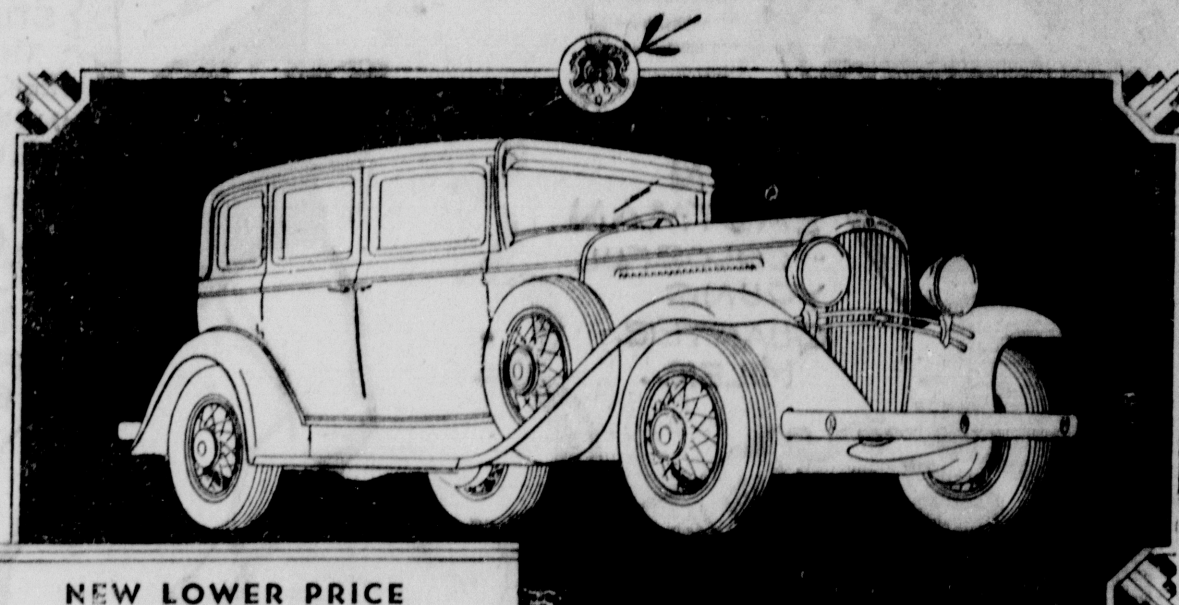

"Strib," among other feats, knocked out Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott during the past year. (Boy, slip Mr. Jacobs another thick Havana to save the wear and tear on those porcelain mouthpieces!)

Seriously, however, Schmeling may prove to be a real champion against the American challenger, especially if the latter has one of his not infrequent off nights. True, Jack Sharkey had been giving Max a painful boxing lesson up to the moment when Jacobs' boy rose on his toes and caught the only low punch Jack fired that night. Max showed no marked ring skill in action, but he did display considerable gameness and, his friends say, he would have plodded on to tire out Sharkey in later rounds had not that foul occurred. (May-be Max and Cho did not take advantage of that! The echoes of Schmeling's moans and Jacobs' shrieks have not died out yet in the Yankee Stadium!)

Because of that unfortunate foul scene and Jacobs' refusal of a return match with Sharkey, Schmeling's title is under heavy clouds, but they can be dissipated in part by a decisive defeat of Stribling. Max has trained faithfully and is in superb condition. He has much commendable pride and that smirched crown must gall him. Max should do his mightiest against Stribling. Stalling, safety-first defensive tactics will but confirm the charge that he's a phony champ. Schmeling must prove he has real class. (Boy, hand Cho Chacops another extra thick cigar!)

ATHLETICS 2 TO 1 FAVORITES OVER CARDINALS TO WIN TITLE

MACK REFUSES TO ANNOUNCE MOUND CHOICE FOR FIRST

LIKELY WILL BE 'LEFTY' GROVE OR WAITE HOYT, DOPE-STER BELIEVE

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—(UP)—A brand new world series, 1931 edition, climax to two wearisome, one-sided pennant races in which the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals led almost throughout the season, will open tomorrow in Sportsman's park before a crowd of some 39,500 spectators.

Grove Likely Starter
The Athletics, riding the crest of a winning wave that has carried them to three consecutive American league

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—(UP)—World series facts and figures:

The schedule: October 1 and 2, Philadelphia at St. Louis; October 5, 6, and 7—St. Louis at Philadelphia; (if necessary) October 9 and 10 at St. Louis.

Time of games: 1:30 p. m. local standard time. Present odds: Athletics to win series 1-2; Cards 3-2; first game, Athletics 3-5; Cardinals 6-5; four straight, Athletics 6-1; Cards 20-1.

pennants and two world baseball championships in the past three years, are 2 to 1 favorites to annex their third post-season classic in succession—a feat hitherto unaccomplished in baseball annals.

Bob Grove, Athletics' superb southpaw, and Paul Derringer, Cardinals' rookie right-hander, are the popular choices to pitch the opening game.

After his foxy fashion Connie Mack does not reveal his pitching selection before world series games, or any other kind of games, for that matter. Grove started the series last year against the Cardinals and won, 5-2, and if he isn't out there winging away with his long left arm tomorrow it will be a bold stroke of strategy on the part of Connie Mack.

In 7 World Series
The Athletics have participated in seven world series prior to this one and Connie Mack has started his ace every time except one. His selection of Howard Ehmke to pitch the opener against the Chicago Cubs in 1929 was the exception. Ed Plank pitched the first game of the 1905 world series and Chief Bender started the world series of 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1914.

While Derringer, a 6-foot, 3-inch, 210-pound Kentuckian rookie who won 18 games and lost 8 in his first year in the National league, is favored to draw the mound assignment for the Cardinals, Gabby Street has reserved the right to change his mind before 1:30 tomorrow.

The Cardinals are going into the series, more or less, crippled. Jess Haines, veteran knuckle-ball pitcher, is nursing a lame right shoulder, injured at Pittsburgh September 4, and has little chance of seeing any service. It is said he hasn't thrown a ball in three weeks. World series cripples, however, have a way of making miraculous recoveries and Haines might get well overnight.

Gelbert, Adams Injured
Charles Gelbert, shortstop who was the Cardinals' hero in last year's series, has a spiked right knee. Third Baseman Sparky Adams has a sprained left ankle. Outfielder Pepper Martin has a wrenched knee. Of this trio, Adams' injury is considered the worst and there is a slight probability that Andy High might play the first two games here at third base. Gelbert and Martin, however, are not hurt bad enough to keep them out of the opening day lineup.

There are bright sides, however, to the Cardinals' cause. Principally because of the improved hitting of Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley, the St. Louis attack is considered more powerful than a year ago. Hafey won the National league batting championship with an average of .348, and Bottomley virtually tied him with .3482.

If Hafey and Bottomley can keep up their hefty hitting against the Athletics, it may mean the difference between victory and defeat for the Cards. Bottomley's feeble batting last year, when he made only one hit in 22 times at bat for an average of .045, was perhaps more than any one factor caused the Cards' downfall.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 30.—Scrimmage against a fresh team using St. Louis plays was scheduled for today as the Illinois squad was being rounded out for the season's opener Saturday. Gil Berry and Dave Cook were given special practice in place-kicking.

A. L. Champions a Happy Lot as They Entrain for St. Louis

Enroute with the Philadelphia Athletics, Sept. 30.—(UP)—An unusually tall young man took three puffs from a long black cigar, stretched his feet just a little farther into the Pullman car aisle, grinned contentedly and said: "I haven't a care in the world."

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, nearly the whole works of the Philadelphia Athletics pitching staff, is almost sure to start for the Athletics against the Cardinals in the series which begins in St. Louis tomorrow.

"I'm feeling great," Grove said. "Now don't ask me about the series. I'm not worrying about it myself. Plenty of people to worry. No, I haven't a thought about the first game or the second game or any other game."

This amounted to a speech for Lefty usually talked in monosyllables. The Athletics were in a jovial mood as they sped westward in their special car. They had a rousing sendoff at North Philadelphia last night.

They ate, played setback for a spell, got up late this morning and were having a grand good time being lazy. The only member of the official party who couldn't keep still was Frank Dipezio, 16-year-old bat boy. He's a veteran campaigner. (This is his second world series. His first was in 1930.)

Every once in a while Frank came to rest long enough to philosophize over the various series possibilities.

Ex-Rural Credits Bureau Head Released Today

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29.—(UP)—V. H. Flowers, former secretary of state rural credits department, was released today from the county workhouse after serving a 90-day sentence for being improperly interested in a state contract.

Flowers pleaded guilty to profiting as much as $47,000 from commissions on insurance contracts on state-owned farms.

No effort was made to arrest him on indictments returned last week in Le Sueur county charging him with approving excessive liability of the defunct Cleveland State Bank.

Seeks to Lease Rail Lines of St. Paul Stockyards Co.

Washington, Sept. 30.—(UP)—The Chicago Great Western railroad applied today to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to lease for 99 years the rail facilities of the St. Paul Union Stock Yards Co., and the St. Paul Bridge and Railway Terminal Co. at St. Paul and South St. Paul, Minn.

There are bright sides, however, to the Cardinals' cause. Principally because of the improved hitting of Chick Hafey and Jim Bottomley, the St. Louis attack is considered more powerful than a year ago. Hafey won the National league batting championship with an average of .348, and Bottomley virtually tied him with .3482.

If Hafey and Bottomley can keep up their hefty hitting against the Athletics, it may mean the difference between victory and defeat for the Cards. Bottomley's feeble batting last year, when he made only one hit in 22 times at bat for an average of .045, was perhaps more than any one factor caused the Cards' downfall.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 30.—Scrimmage against a fresh team using St. Louis plays was scheduled for today as the Illinois squad was being rounded out for the season's opener Saturday. Gil Berry and Dave Cook were given special practice in place-kicking.

He thinks Grove is sure to start. He thinks the Athletics will win the first game and the series. He thinks the issue will be undecided after next week's games in Philadelphia and he hopes so, for he likes to ride world series special trains.

Connie Mack, Athletics manager, remained unquotable as he ever is before the start of a series. Like Grove, Mack was affable enough but would talk about anything except the series.

As a matter of fact, the Athletics had every reason to be jubilant. For one thing, Mack has a chance to set a new record of winning three consecutive pennants. For another, the Athletics were nearly at full strength. Although they won the pennant without much trouble, they were the "crippled" club in the American circuit all season. Now, however, all the regulars save one are ready for series play.

The exception is Joe Boley, shortstop. He has had a bad knee for some days and Mack had not counted on him for series duty. To make it virtually sure that he would not have much chance of play, Boley further damaged his knee in the final practice on Tuesday.

Here's the probable Athletics batting order:
Bishop, 2b; Haas, cf; Cochrane, c; Simmons, lf; Fox, 1b; Miller, rf; Dykes, 3b; Williams, ss; Grove, p.

On the Sidelines

(By United Press)

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 30.—Scrimmage against a freshman squad using Oklahoma A. and M. plays was scheduled for Minnesota today. Quentin Burdick, star of last Saturday's game, and Haas, a track sprinter, filled the halfback positions, and Jim Dennerly, a guard, and Roy Oen, flashy center, were back in the main line-up.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 30.—Zit Tesser's smart handling of the Michigan squad in practice has almost assured him of the quarterback position in Saturday's fray against Ypsilanti Normal. In addition, his punting has been the best seen on Ferry Field this year.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30.—The Wisconsin regulars were to be divided into two teams today for scrimmage against reserves in preparation for the double-header against Bradley and North Dakota State Saturday. New lateral pass plays were practiced yesterday.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 30.—Iowa's defensive practice today was hampered by the absence of Ed Dolly, guard, who wrenched his knee yesterday. Physicians said Dolly may be unable to play against Pittsburgh Saturday. Samuelson, star tackle, was in uniform for the first time since his injury a week ago.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 30.—The Notre Dame regulars appeared baffled by Indiana plays in a "shadow" scrimmage yesterday and Coach Anderson indicated he may start the shock troops in the game at Bloomington. The second string backfield was composed of Jaskvich, Koken, Cronin, Inovich and Leonard.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 30.—A lack of reserve line strength is worrying Indiana coaches preparing for the Saturday Notre Dame game. The regular team, however, showed up well in scrimmage with a freshman team using Notre Dame plays.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 30.—George Potte, sophomore quarterback candidate, looked impressive yesterday against freshmen using Nebraska plays and was expected to start against the Panthers Saturday.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 30.—The ability of Paul Pardonner to dropkick accurately in scrimmage games has raised hopes that for the first time in years Purdue may have a dependable kicker. While the regular backfield looked on from the sidelines, a substitute backfield scrimmaged effectively yesterday in preparation for Saturday's double-header with Coe and Western Reserve.

JUNIOR WORLD SERIES OPENS IN ST. PAUL TODAY

MANAGERS SOUTHWORTH, ROCHESTER, LIEFIELD, ST. PAUL, PREDICT CLOSE SERIES

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 30.—(UP)—A day before its big time rival starts in St. Louis, the little world series between Rochester and St. Paul opens this afternoon in Lexington park.

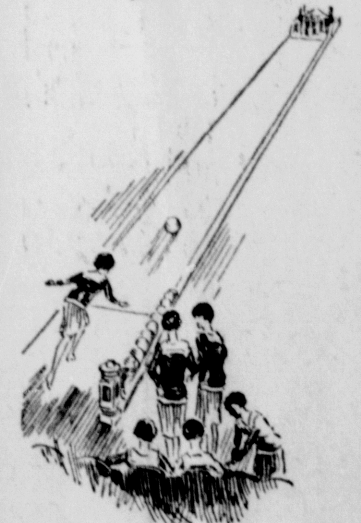

All was in readiness for the clash of the champions of the International league and the American association. Final workouts were held yesterday. Crowds stood in line for the bleacher seats which went on sale this morning. Officials of both leagues arrived in St. Paul. Even the peanut and pop vendors were on hand.

Managers William Southworth of the Red Wings and Lefty Liefield of the Saints both predicted a hard and close series. The first four games will be played at Lexington Park on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday. Friday will be a rest day unless the weather forces a postponement. Then the teams will go to Rochester to play the remaining games.

The series is expected to develop into a battle between Southworth's pitching staff of Raymond Starr, Carmen Hill, Herman Bell, Raymond Moss, Charles Foreman, Ira Smith and Larry Irvin and the Saints' heavy hitters who brought the association championship here.

Southworth is keeping hit pitching star, Raymond Starr, on the bench. Carmen Hill, bespectacled veteran, will start for the Red Wings. Walter Betts will pitch for the Saints.

Notre Dame Dedicates Grid Season to Memory of Rockne

Chicago, Sept. 28.—(UP)—Notre Dame's first football team in 20 years without Knute Rockne will open the 1931 season Saturday against Indiana.

Since 1911 when Rockne played end he had been identified with Notre Dame football as player, assistant coach and head coach. Rockne's loss to Notre Dame football cannot be measured now. It may take years for the final answer.

In speculating on what effect Rockne's absence will have on the 1931 team it is well to go back to the season of 1929 when the late Notre Dame coach was ill and absent from his team during six games. Rockne's spirit hovered over the 1929 team while he lay dangerously ill at South Bend, and the fighting Irish battled their way through a difficult schedule to the national championship.

Speaking on Notre Dame's prospects for a third national championship team, Jesse Harper, who has returned to Notre Dame as athletic director, said: "It is asking too much of any team to go through a third straight season without defeat."

But Rockne would ask it, and the members of the 1932 Notre Dame team know he would ask it. Heartly Anderson, senior coach, and Jack Chevigny, junior coach, will not have to give this year's Notre Dame team any inspirational talks between halves. It is silently understood among the players that the season is dedicated to the late coach who crashed in an airplane accident on a lonely Kansas prairie last March.

Notre Dame has another potential championship squad. Rockne knew that when he arranged another of his typical "suicide" schedules. The supreme test will come against Northwestern October 10. Coach Anderson, as well as everyone else, realizes that.

"If we can get past Northwestern we have a good chance to go through the season undefeated," said Anderson. But Northwestern is gunning for Notre Dame, and making no mistakes about it. Football fans sensed many weeks ago that the Notre Dame-Northwestern game will be one of the great football games ever played. Already more than 90,000 tickets have been sold and the crowd may be the largest ever to see a football game.

As for Notre Dame's team, the big question is to replace Frank Carideo, Joe Savoldi and Marty Brill, three-fourths of last year's great backfield. Carideo will be the hardest one to replace. If Jaskvich, Murphy or Vejar, the three quarterback candidates, prove half as good as Carideo, Notre Dame will have little reason to worry about that position.

Last year's line is back almost intact, and Markey Schwartz, the best running back of 1930, is the bulwark of this year's backfield. Notre Dame's first team probably will line up as follows: Kosky, le; Culver, lt; Harriss, lg; Yarr, c; Hoffman, rg; Kurth, rt; Mahoney, re; Jaskvich, qb; Schwartz, lhb; Sheeketski, rlb; Lacats, fb.

The shock troops lineup probably will be: Host, le; Krause, lt; Greeney, lg; Rogers, c; Pierce, rg; Kozac, rt; Devore, re; Murphy, qb; Koken, lhb; Cronun, rlb; Melinkovich, fb.

All of these players were thoroughly drilled by Rockne last year and in spring practice. They are certain to go into every game with the memory of Rockne uppermost in their minds. Any player who fails to deliver is apt to be looked down on by every Notre Dame man.

The schedule: Oct. 3, Indiana at Bloomington; Oct. 10, Northwestern at Soldier field; Oct. 17, Drake at South Bend; Oct. 24, Pittsburgh at South Bend; Oct. 31, Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh; Nov. 7, Pennsylvania at South Bend; Nov. 14, Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 21, Southern California at South Bend; Nov. 28, Army at New York.

Portland Man Second in Line for Series

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—(UP)—Dan Corcoran of Portland, Ore., who bummed his way from the coast for this particular world series, was second in line for a bleacher rush seat at Sportsman's Park today, but he ought to be first.

Corcoran, with a duffle bag holding all his belongings, jumped from a freight train yesterday, and hied his way to the park, only to find Horace Anspaugh, Sedalia, Mo., unemployed hotel clerk, had won first place by 28 hours. Anspaugh doesn't need a bleacher seat to see the series, but gets $200 from a friend for being first in line. He bought a grandstand seat Monday.

"After all, I'm the first honest to goodness guy who wants to see this series cheap," Corcoran, a tousled haired unemployed laborer 38 years old, said.

ST. LOUIS CARDS GETTING GRIP ON NATIONAL FLAG

TEAM THAT WON'T BE BEATEN CAN'T BE BEATEN, SEEMS TO BE RULE

EXPERTS ARE WRONG IN THEIR
DOPE, HAD SAID CARDS WERE SLIPPING

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, June 30.—If a team that won't be beaten can't be beaten, you can write your ticket on the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1931 National League championship.

St. Louis, holding a one and one half game lead, came over to the Polo Grounds yesterday for the first contest of a four-game series with the second place New York Giants. The Cardinals were slipping, the experts said, for they had lost four out of five to Brooklyn and just previous to that had looked none too impressive against Philadelphia and Boston.

When the Cardinals went into the ninth inning on the short end of a 3 to 2 count, it looked as if the experts were right. Carl Hubbell had bested Flint Rhem up to the ninth. But the critics had failed to reckon with the spirit of Manager Gabby Street's men—a spirit that carried the Red Birds to the league championship last year after they appeared to be hopelessly out of the running.

No one would have given a nickel for the Cardinal chances in the ninth for two men had been retired and Chick Hafey, who had batted for Gelbert, was on first. Then that old spirit showed itself. Adams singled, Wilson doubled, Blades walked and Collins singled. That combination went for three runs and the ball game.

The final score of 5 to 3 didn't mean as much as the fact that St. Louis had pulled the contest out of the fire. As long as the Cardinals refuse to be beaten they can't be dropped from the championship picture.

Chicago's Cubs continued to find the going rough in the east, dropping a 11 to 10 decision to Philadelphia. Five Cubs pitchers did little more than go through the motions as the Phillies collected 15 hits, including Chuck Klein's 20th home run of the year.

The Brooklyn Robins advanced to within one half game of the third place Cubs when they defeated Cincinnati, 6 to 4. Johnny Frederick's home run with the bases filled in the fifth inning caused the downfall of old Eppa Rixey.

Ray Kremer held the Boston Braves to four hits as Pittsburgh won 4 to 2. Kremer's own wildness in the fourth inning prevented him from registering a shutout.

The American League pennant race remained at a standstill with the pace setting Philadelphia Athletics holding a margin of two and one half games over the Washington Senators. The Athletics dropped a 6 to 5 decision to Detroit while Chicago defeated Washington, 9 to 7.

Alexander's long fly, scoring Johnson who had singled, gave the Tigers the run that enabled them to turn back the Athletics in the ninth inning. A six-run assault in the fourth inning was the drive which gave the White Sox their victory over the Senators.

The Cleveland Indians advanced to within two and one half games of the third place New York club when they defeated the Yankees in a double-header, 15 to 6 and 4 to 2. Babe Ruth poled out his 18th home run of the season in the opening contest.

The Boston Red Sox stopped the St. Louis Browns' winning streak at eight games by taking the final contest of the five-game series, 4 to 2. Old Wiley Moore shut out the Browns until the final inning.

Calm Ocean Belt

"Horse latitude" is the name given to the belt of calms in the North Atlantic ocean between the region of westerly winds of the higher latitudes and the region of trade winds of the torrid zone. Authorities differ in regard to the origin of the name, some claiming that it was derived from the fact that vessels with a cargo of horses were often so delayed on account of the calms that the animals perished from lack of water.

Profitable Ideas

Money was made by the man who first thought of molding candles, instead of dipping them, and not less profitable was the method of making pins all in one piece, discovered by Seth Hunt. He did not fall far short of Joseph Chamberlain, who also thought carefully on the subject of points, and evolved the modern screw, which brought him a highly satisfactory income.

Discovery of America

Legend tradition differs as to the first discovery of the mainland of North America. According to the Saga of Eric the Red America was discovered by Leif Ericson about the year 1000. The tale of the Green-landers, however, ascribes the discovery to Bjarni Herjolffson at an earlier date—perhaps about 987 A. D. Critics regard the Saga of Eric the Red as the better authority, although the tale of the Greenlanders is used to complete the story.

Old Forts, Like Custer, Must Face 'Last Stand'

Former Bulwarks of Strength for Pioneers of Far West Are Trampled Underfoot by March of Progress

MRS. GEORGE A. CUSTER CHIEF SITTING BULL
Trampled underfoot by the inevitable march of progress, the old forts and military bases of the United States Army in the West are to be abandoned in the interest of economy—their days of usefulness over. Rich in historical lore, these old forts once stood as bulwarks of strength for bewildered pioneers, harassed and slaughtered by marauding Indians as they strove to carve a new empire in the West. One of the most tragic incidents connected with the old forts whose doom has been sounded was the massacre, one blistering day in 1876, of a detachment of troops under General George A. Custer, noted Civil War fighter, in the Battle of the Little Big Horn. Custer and all his men were slain, after a gallant "Last Stand," by Sioux and Santee Indians led by Chief Sitting Bull. Mrs. Custer, widow of the general, now residing in New York, has voiced a protest that the old forts, so closely linked with the progress of the nation, are to fall before the very element which they helped preserve.

The Children's Corner

Edited by DOROTHY EDMONDS

Charles Dickens and Bob Fagin

Charles Dickens, when about eleven years old, found work in a blacking warehouse at Old Hungerford Stairs, overlooking the Thames river, in an unsavory part of London. His work there consisted in covering the pots of paste blacking, first with a piece of oil paper and then with blue paper. After that he tied them with a string, clipped the paper neatly all-round and fastened a printed label to each pot of blacking.

"You don't like it here over-much, do ye, now?" the boy who worked beside him said one day.

"No, I don't like it," was Charles' reply.
The boy—his name was Bob Fagin—grinned and shrugged one shoulder; he was a large, heavily built boy with coarse features. "That's 'cause you're a gentleman!" he remarked with a wink at Pol Green, one of the other boys who worked in the big warehouse. "You look pale, sort of. May be you're worried about somethin', eh? Maybe you've got a secret!"

Charles continued to paste his labels in silence.

All that Bob Fagin had said was true. Charles was not strong, and the work that he was doing only served to increase his ill health. He was also tortured by the thought of his father who was in a debtors' prison. He had spoken to no one about it; pride kept his lips tight-shut on the subject. That was his secret.

Later in the day, just as he was applying a label to one of the pots, he uttered a startled cry and pressed his hand against his side.

"Ho!" cried Fagin, running to him. "Here's a go! The lad's in pain."

With some of the straw that covered the floor of the workroom he made a bed for his suffering companion.

"Now, lad," said Fagin, "you're still weak, and you need help. If you should try to go home alone, you'd likely fall before you were halfway there. Tell me where you live and I'll go along with you. I'll see that you get safe home to your father, I will."

Charles felt a warm flush over-spread his cheeks. Home! He had no home, only an attic room in a miserable lodging-house. If Bob Fagin accompanied him he would be sure to discover the truth: that his father was in Marshalsea prison!

"I—I feel better," he said at last. "I'm sure I can reach home alone."

"And I say you can't!" the other repeated. "I guess I'm not going to let you start off alone!"

Charles' cheeks burned like fire. There seemed to be no way out of it; he must permit Bob Fagin to accompany him. But he was still resolved that he should learn nothing.

Night was closing in when he and Fagin left the warehouse together. Up one street and down another they walked in the growing darkness.

"You live a long way off, don't you?" Fagin said at last.

Charles nodded. He did not tell his friend that they were merely walking aimlessly about the city.

Finally Charles stopped in front of a strange house. "Thanks!" he said in a nervous trembling voice. "I—I'm greatly obliged to you, Bob!" and he ran up the stairs of the house and rang the bell.

A servant came to the door and frowned down upon the boy. "What is it you want?" the servant demanded.

Charles glanced nervously over his shoulder; Bob Fagin had disappeared round the corner. He swallowed hard.

"Well?" inquired the servant irritably.

"Does—does Mr. Bob Fagin live here?" the question seemed to leap from the boy's lips, unbidden.

"No!" And the door closed with a bang.

Charles turned and quickly descended the steps, whence he made his way to his miserable little attic room. He had kept his secret!

HELEN JACOBS IN SURPRISING UPSET

DEFEATS BRITISH FAVORITE,
BETTY NUTHALL, 6-2, 6-3,
AT WIMBLEDON

Wimbledon, Eng., June 30.—(U.P.)—Helen Jacobs, Pacific coast star, flashed a surprising upset in the Wimbledon women's singles tournament today when she defeated the British favorite, Betty Nuthall, 6-2, 6-3.

The husky Californian played a powerful game to conquer the girl who last year went to the United States and annexed the American title.

Miss Jacobs had not been established as the American favorite. Mrs. L. A. Harper of San Francisco was No. 1 player of the Americans, and her elimination had caused some worry to the Americans. But Miss Jacobs today apparently returned to the peak of the game which made her the runner up to Helen Wills in American tennis ratings a few years ago.

Miss Jacobs played a carefully planned game and kept her British rival on the defensive throughout the match. She abandoned her customary hard hitting game and offered a mixture of outs and lobs, luring Miss Nuthall into repeated errors.

Helen started with a rush, winning the first four games without removing her sweater. She tantalized Betty with a floating out ball which the English girl was unable to meet squarely and usually netted or sliced out of the court.

During the second set Helen flashed her fast service, driving the ball as hard as most men players, but she continued her effective soft stroking in the rallies and made seemingly impossible returns of Betty's few accurate placements.

Mosquitoes Inject Poisonous Thinning Fluid Into Blood!

Cause of Horrible
Blood Diseases
Now Known

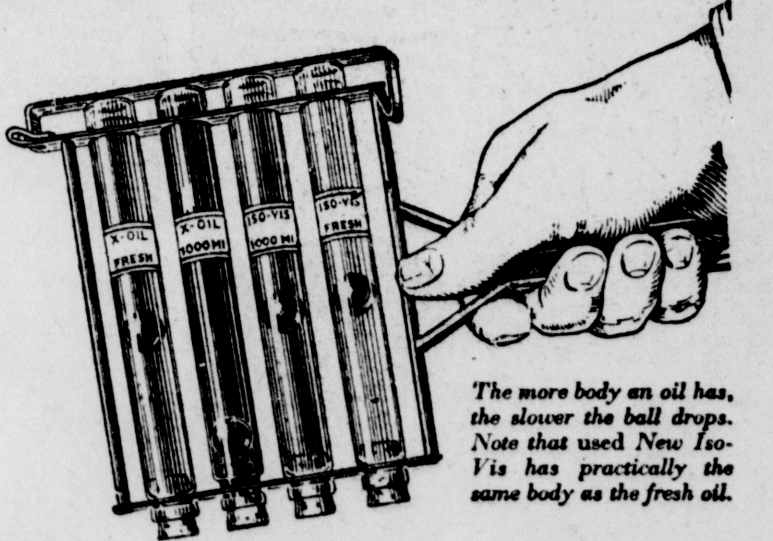

Most people think the pain and itch of a mosquito bite is due to irritation of the "bite" itself. This is far from the truth, as science shows. When the mosquito sinks her stinger thru your skin to drink, she first must inject a fluid from her serum sac to thin your blood.

This thinning fluid is poisonous and often alive with the germs of malignant diseases, taken up from unhealthy people the mosquito has bitten before going to you. As this is "direct transmission" of disease germs into the blood it constitutes a terrible danger. You shudder when an awful blood disease is mentioned. Shudder when you see a mosquito and lose no time in reaching for your FLY-TOX gun and ending the mosquito's life, quickly.

FLY-TOX is proven to be the surest, quickest-killing household spray made. It is sure death to the FEARFUL, Fly, Mosquito, Roach, Bed Bug, Ant, Flea, Moth.

Insist on FLY-TOX at your drug store or grocery.

"Just 3 seconds of your time and a flip of the wrist—that's all it takes for you to make this interesting test. You'll probably get a big surprise from watching the four steel balls sink through the oil to the bottom of each bottle.

"What these little steel balls tell you is the gospel truth—New Iso-Vis will not thin out from dilution. And what's more, it's the only motor oil that will stand up like this.

"Here's a challenge. Fill up with New Iso-Vis. Then when it's time to drain, come in. Try your own oil in the Ball and Bottle Test. See for yourself that New Iso-Vis will not thin out from dilution."

A. A. U. Thrills Coming

By HARDIN BURNLEY

A MAJORITY of America's ablest track and field athletes are gathering in Lincoln, Neb., where the National A. A. U. games will be held this Friday and Saturday. Old records may pop like Fourth of July pyrotechnics, if wind and weather are normal.

The program is jammed with features—Ben Eastman, of Stanford, will strive to succeed his red-hot rival, Vic Williams, of Southern California, as the American half-mile champ; Frank Wykoff and Eddie Tolan will wage another of their hairline dash duels; Bill Graber, who did 14 feet 1/2 inch at the I. C. 4-A games at Philadelphia last Memorial Day, will try to equal or break the world's pole vault record of 14 feet 1 1/2 inches; Joe McCluskey, of Fordham, will defend his 2-mile A. A. U. championship. These are but a few of the major attractions.

From the general fan angle, most interest probably will center on the Wykoff-Tolan sprint issue. Frank defeated Eddie twice during the Spring—eyelash finishes both, the rosy white tip (perhaps) of the Californian comet's nose catching the judges' eyes but a shade ahead of the squat darky known as "Michigan's Midnight Express." Dash duels, indeed!!

Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Tolan is the world's 100-yard champion, his 9 1/2 seconds accepted officially by athletic authorities everywhere. He and Wykoff shade 10 practically every time they do the 100. For two years now they have been sprinters extraordinary and the question of supremacy has not yet been settled.

Graber probably will shoot for 14-2 in the pole vault or just enough to shade the 14-1 1/2 world record made by his fellow-Californian, Lee Barnes, in 1929. That should be the high spot in the jumping events.

In team play the meet again looks like a runaway for the Los Angeles A. C., with the Olympic Club as runner-up.

SEASONAL ACTIVITIES ALLEVIATE UNEMPLOYMENT DURING AUGUST

There was very little change in the industrial employment situation of the country during August when compared with the previous month, the federal reserve bulletin says. However, some expansion occurred in seasonal activities which provided employment for thousands of men and women in various sections. Harvesting of the mid-summer crops was under way in practically every State offering employment to a great many people. Large demands were made toward the close of the month in the southern and southwestern States for cotton-picking and for sugar-beet field labor in several of the States of the mountain district. Seasonal operations were started in many of the vegetable and fruit-canning factories and packing houses which resulted in an increase in employment in several localities. Some expansion in highway construction was noted and this activity continued to offer employment to large numbers of skilled and unskilled workers. While there was considerable building under way in many of the larger cities, surpluses of these craftsmen were apparent in many sections. Municipal improvements, public utility extensions, and Federal construction projects employed large number of men.

Curtailing operating schedules obtained in several of the major industries and many factories worked with curtailed forces engaged. This was particularly noticeable among the plants manufacturing automobiles and automobile accessories, iron and steel products, radios, agricultural implements, and to a lesser extent in establishments manufacturing rubber goods. Some increase in production and employment occurred in the textile mills in the New England States. There was also some improvement in activities in the silk mills in the Middle Atlantic district and additional workers were engaged in quite a number of these plants. Metal mining and coal mining remained on a greatly curtailed basis and large numbers of these workers were idle.

General.—The demand for farm help improved slightly during August and many migratory workers found employment in the wheat harvesting area. Some seasonal gains in employment were noted at the grain elevators and in the railroad industry. State highway construction offered employment to approximately 10,000 men. The resumption of seasonal activity in the beet-sugar industry is expected in September which will provide temporary work for several thousand people. The combined public and private building programs were not large enough to absorb all resident building-trades men. Normal employment for this time of year was reported in the meat-packing houses. Hotels, restaurants and tourist resorts continued to engage several thousand people.

Minneapolis.—A slight seasonal upward trend in mercantile lines and the drift of men from the city to harvest fields in North Dakota and western Minnesota helped to reduce unemployment during August; however, there was a surplus of qualified workers in practically all lines. Several large building projects were under way, but the supply of craftsmen was considerably in excess of requirements. City improvements, including sewer work and street railway repairs, continued at a fair rate giving employment to a large number of men. A slight upturn was noted in the printing houses and flour mills. Hains during the month ended the drought resulting in a slightly better call for general farm labor. There was a fair demand for restaurant and hotel workers and domestic help. There was some demand for beet-sugar workers which will increase in September. Little change in employment was reported in mail-order houses, farm machinery plants, railroad repair shops, or wholesale houses.

St. Paul.—Reports from the leading industries in this city showed little improvement in the general industrial situation compared with a month ago. Many transient workers left for the harvest fields, but a surplus of general farm labor was still apparent at the close of August. Street improvement projects and other city work continued to employ many men. Building proceeded at a fair rate with all classes of building-trades men plentiful. A slight increase in employment was noted in the railroad industry. A large automobile-assembling plant employed about 1,500 men 3 days a week. Seasonal schedules prevailed in the meat-packing houses. Mail-order houses, shoe plants, wholesale clothing establishments, printing and publishing houses, foundries, and refrigerator concerns reported no appreciable change in forces. There was a fair demand for hotel and restaurant help.

Duluth.—A marked surplus of labor was reported, particularly noticeable among building-trades men as few major construction projects were under way. Heavy tourist traffic continued to provide employment for quite a number of people in the hotels, restaurants, and summer camps. Small gains in employment were noted in the railroad shops and grain elevators. Less than normal forces were engaged in the lumber yards and wholesale hardware concerns. Slight employment increases were noted in the creameries while little change was reported in the steel mills or cement plants.

Winona.—There was a surplus of railroad workers and building-trades men apparent during August. The fair demand for competent farm help was readily met. All local concerns operated, but some were on part-time schedules. Highway construction in this vicinity continued to give employment to many workers.

Mankato.—Some improvement in local industrial conditions was noted in August. Farm help was in good demand. The building program was not large enough to absorb all resident craftsmen.

St. Cloud.—Building showed some improvement during the month, but the demand for labor in this industry was still considerably under normal. State highway construction and city improvements engaged many workers. Seasonal dullness obtained in the granite industry. A motor-parts factory operated full time.

Albert Lea.—There was a noticeable surplus of unskilled labor apparent in August. All local factories operated on slightly curtailed schedules. Grading of trunk highways gave employment to a number of men during the month. The supply of building-trades men exceeded requirements.

Miss Rose Poppenberg went to Staples today to visit friends.

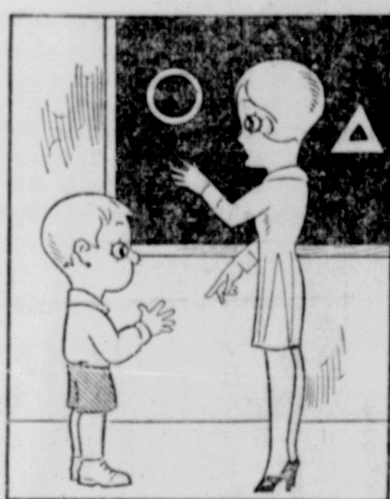

Miss Louise Beare went to Minneapolis this morning to visit friends. Mrs. D. Beise left this morning for the Twin Cities. She expects to return tomorrow night.

C. B. Rowley was down from Aitkin to spend Sunday with his family, returning this morning.

A pleasant surprise was given Miss Jennie Zakariassen on Saturday morning. About thirty of her young friends were present. Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was had by all.

Merovie Turcotte went to Pine River to attend the Cass county fair to be held there this week. He has a string of horses owned by Frank Lardie of this city, which will be entered at the races there.

Where Curfew Rings

Although the curfew bell was abolished in the seventeenth century, there are still a few towns in England, which retain the old custom. At Rippon, in Yorkshire; Sandbach, Cheshire; Chesham in Buckinghamshire, and Worthingham, Berkshire, a bell is rung or a horn blown to announce curfew each night.

CUTS IN ON CAR, DRIVER TAGGED AS CARELESS DRIVER

PILLAGER YOUTH, BIG FOR AGE, CERTIFIED TO JUVENILE COURT HERE

Cutting in on another motorist on East Oak Street was specified in a complaint of careless driving brought by Minnesota Highway Patrol officers today against Frank Deaver, Pillager.

Deaver was given a tag by Lieutenant R. S. Titus last night and told to report to municipal court.

Appearing today, Deaver said his age was 17 years and he was certified by Judge J. H. Warner to the juvenile court.

"This is the first time I have been mistaken on the age of a juvenile," Titus said today as other attendants at court remarked that Deaver appeared more the age of 25 than 17 years.

Judge Kinder will either dispose of the case in juvenile court or send the youth back to municipal court. The latter course was predicted, but first, papers must be served on the boy's parents before he can be arraigned.

Feather-Weight Metal

A wonderful new metal of English origin is a secret alloy of aluminum, considerably lighter than pure aluminum, yet nearly as strong as steel. It does not suffer to anything like the same extent as other impurities from the effects of fatigue. Manufacturers are able to use it for parts that had previously to be made of nothing but steel, and its smaller weight reduces wear.

SEARCH PARTY FINDS HEAT VICTIM AT GULL

Robert Henderson, Nisswa Farmer's Son, Wanders About Woods Mind Affected by Heat

REPORTED RECOVERING

Other Heat Prostration in District Reported as Temperature Sticks at 97

Driven insane by the heat a Nisswa farmer's son was reported recovering today after he had wandered aimlessly about the woods and was finally found by a search party of 40 who took him upon him on the shore of Gull Lake last night.

The young man, Robert Henderson, son of D. C. Henderson, living two miles south of Nisswa, was missing at 5 p. m. He had previously complained of a headache. When he failed to appear at a search party organized by the Nisswa community, the search party was organized. Men searched the woods through to Gull Lake. There they found the youth at 9:30 p. m. He failed to recognize any of his neighbors and talked incoherently. He was brought home where medical aid was given.

Another heat prostration was reported. George Kirsch of Fourth avenue N. E. was overcome at Hunt's Y. was brought to Brainerd by W. W. Johnson of Ironton. His condition this afternoon was reported serious but had improved by last night.

Removal of Tree Brings to Light Names in 1911 Eighth Grade Class

TIME IS TURNED BACK

Students Then, Life Causes Separation of Many in Intervening Period

Guarded for 20 years by the earth and a maple tree, a manuscript containing the names of the class mates in the Eighth Grade of the Lowell school in 1911 was recovered today to stir the memories of the past.

The manuscript, yellowed by time but still legible, was taken from a bottle with a corroded top under a soft maple tree that had decayed and was removed by order of the Brainerd Board of Education.

The names of the students today brings to light many happenings since the planting of the tree by the grade class on Arbor Day, 1911. Some are deceased, many have moved away from Brainerd, the majority are married with families and making their homes in Brainerd.

These are the names which each signed to the script: Elsa Peterson, Dora Scharfen, Esther Saterlee, William Thompson, Hazel Barrone, George Irwin, Martha Clausen, Ethel Jones, Alice Russell, Robert Johnson, Beatrice MacDonald, Pearl Zander, Marie E. Stein, Nettie Wentworth, Sigrid Lind, Richard Wayt, Minnie Swanson, Mildred Edling, Walter Roney, Ira Arnold, DeEtte Rose, Goldie Lind, Ben N. ROADS TO BE FINE FOR 4TH OF JULY

Highways Retreated; State Highway Patrol Urges Safe and Sane Travel; Thousands Coming

All roads in the Brainerd lake region will be in as fine a condition as possible for the reception of thousands of visitors from this and other states over the Fourth of July week end holidays, it was learned here today through the State and County Highway departments.

Barring the possibility of a deluge the roads will have smooth hard surface for the heavy traffic.

Meanwhile officers of the Minnesota Highway Patrol urged a safe and sane Fourth on the highways. Four patrolmen stationed at Brainerd will be on the highways around this city. Serious offenders will be arrested, they said.

Retreating of the Mille Lacs Lake road from Garrison to Onamia will be completed by July 3, according to A. W. Moulster, superintendent of the Minnesota Highway Department here. He also said that retreating of State Trunk Highway No. 2, Brainerd to Motley, would be retreated entirely by tonight.

S. T. H. 19, Brainerd to Pine River has been retreated and is in smooth shape.

County Highway Engineer Walter M. Murphy announced today that the county will not do any tar treating on the Merrifield road until after the holidays.

NO TRACE OF FOUR WHO ROBBED BANK; SUSPECTS CLEARED

STATE OPERATIVES LEARN BANDITS HEADED SOUTH-EAST OF FORESTON

Immediate pursuit of four men who held up the State Bank of Foreston yesterday and escaped with $5,200 in currency was halted today, as clues leading to three suspects failed.

State Criminal Operatives determined that two men suspected of having a part in the holdup when arrested in Elk River were not connected with the robbery.

Another suspect who was arrested in Minneapolis also was said to have an alibi. After robbing the bank the bandits headed west and then turned south and east, witnesses said.

Ministerial Students Meted Out Prison Terms

Tehuacana, Tex., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Two students who turned bandits so they could continue their studies to become ministers were under sentence today to spend five years each in prison.

The youths, Pete Price Hearn and Fan Briggs, confessed and were sentenced for holding up a taxi driver and robbing him of $2. Hearn is a son of a Methodist minister. Briggs was co-captain of the Tehuacana Methodist college football team. Both were studying to be ministers when their money ran short and they turned to banditry.

Professors and other students of the school said they would ask Gov. Ross Sterling to pardon the youths. Prayer sessions were held for them at the school.

GREAT GARDEN FOR U. S.-CANADA BORDER

Plan Living Monument to Honor Long Friendship.

Toronto, Ont.—The project of an international peace garden on the boundary line between United States and Canada is proceeding. Before very long it will be possible for the sponsors to announce the site of this modern Eden of trees, shrubs and flowers which will be laid out as a living monument to the long amity of the two nations.

Then, according to H. J. Moore of Islington, Ont., who conceived the idea and is now international secretary of the scheme, the drive for funds will be on in earnest. Funds have been coming in, although no special effort has been made to induce them. These have been spontaneous gifts from people who have, either individually or in groups, been seized by the graphic beauty of the plan to make a boundary garden.

Gets Big Support.

It was August, 1929, when Mr. Moore first outlined the idea to the National Association of Gardeners of America at their annual convention in Toronto. It was enthusiastically endorsed and received such support that today 56 national, state and provincial organizations have put their pledges behind it.

Recently a wave of support has come from the Middle West and South, particularly from Manitoba, the Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

These are states on the great Canada-to-Canada highway, called already the Main street of America—which will eventually run from Churchill on Hudson bay, down through Canada, the United States, Mexico, and Central America to Cape Horn. It will be, it is claimed, the world's greatest highway and will make it possible to motor from the sub-Arctic of Canada through the tropics to the southern tip of the continent.

The road now runs from Bowman and Swan River, Manitoba, across the boundary and down through the United States to Mexico City. It is not yet a completed highway through-out.

Site Wins Favor.

The reason for the recent strong wave of support from regions on the Canada-to-Canada highway is evident from the fact that the road runs through an area that is being considered as a possible—one might almost write probable—site for the International Peace garden. This area is Turtle mountains, on the boundary between Manitoba and North Dakota, one of the few heights of land in the mid-west prairies.

Geographically this area could not have been more ideally located for its purpose. It is on this main north-south highway of the continent and on the boundary line almost exactly midway between New York and Vancouver.

It is, in fact, almost at the exact geographical center of the North American continent.

Where Colonists Landed

An interesting historical fact which is little recognized is that the first landing of the English Cavaliers in America was made in 1537 under the leadership of Capt. John Smith near the old Cape Henry Lighthouse, five miles north of Virginia Beach, and not at Jamestown as is popularly supposed. Cape Henry is visited each year by pilgrims from all over the country coming to celebrate the landing of English colonists there.

Fish Follow a Bell, Eat From Visitors' Fingers at Vogt's Beauty Haven, Mecca for Thousands Funny tribe that once were elusive to fishermen, now domesticated, protected and are particularly partial to bells and live frogs, swim around in the bay within a few feet of visitors at a summer home of two bachelors that has become a center of curiosity, attraction and appeal to thousands of visitors this summer.

The place is the summer residence of Arnold and Hugo Vogt, of Omaha, Neb. It is located at Echo lake, joined to Bay lake by a channel. The grounds and surroundings offer a haven of beauty. The men are horticulturists and enjoy their pleasant surroundings and friends so much that they now come early in the spring and remain until late in the fall.

The Vogt brothers came to the lake region seven years ago just like hundreds of others were doing at that time. They wanted a place to build a summer home. They selected the site and erected a modest cottage. Each year they continued to make improvements. In the meantime they made friends with the fish in the bay—bass, pike, crappies, sunfish. They scattered the water with food. The fish were shy but soon they came to know that Arnold or Hugo did not intend to harm them but wanted to become friends. Months and months of coddling prevailed and eventually the brothers were rewarded by being able to feed the fish from their hands. During this time no one else was allowed near. To make the fish more friendly, the brothers brought friends and the fish learned to like them, too, because they were good to them.

The brothers chanced to bring a bell near the water one day. There was a churning of the waters and soon a large school of fish played about in the water close to the shore. The brothers found that if they continued to ring the bell and walk down the shore the fish would follow.

When at one time fishermen in the bay caught one of the tame fish, the brothers appealed to the State Game and Fish Department and by special allowance a game preserve was established there.

Each day many visitors stop at the Vogt home but the popular day for visiting is Sunday. Thousands of people have fed the fish at Vogt's and the registry kept is filled with names of people from every part of the country. Live frogs are brought constantly by people to see the big bass swirl the waters for the choice morsel.

Those who have not visited this beauty spot should avail themselves of the opportunity. They will receive a cordial welcome by the Vogt brothers.

Invents New Product When Business Gets Bad

Springfield, Mo., Sept. 30.—(AP)—When business went bad for the Springfield Wagon Company, H. H. Fellows, manager, just got busy and invented a product that would sell. Today he had extra employees working overtime and had forgotten there was a depression.

Fellows invented a rubber-tired trailer, and the affair turned out to be a boon to cotton growers. Taken into the field, it can be loaded with the staple, and then attached with several others like it to a truck for the haul to market.

CHAPTER LVI.

AFTER Lorrimer had left the room she lay back against the pillows and tried to think her way out. There was no doubt that she was tempted. Terribly tempted. She admitted as much to herself. Why hadn't Mary Lou stayed and fought it out with her?

Why had she run away? "But," thought Delight, "in this case running away took more courage. All she had to do was stay and say nothing and let him look at both of us." She smiled, very bitterly, having no illusions. "But now that she has run away," said Delight to herself, "she's left me a clear field. Well, comparatively clear; I'd be a fool not to take advantage of it. But then, I've always been a fool."

Inevitable Outcome

Before dinner Larry Mitchell arrived. He arrived in a condition which strongly resembled excitement, for Jenny, meeting him at the station that afternoon, had, of course, told him the whole story of her encounter with Mary Lou. "She said she'd keep in touch with us. But she won't. Where has she gone?" Jenny demanded frantically. "What will she do? Larry, we must find her; she's breaking her heart over Travers and this idiotic woman, whoever she is. And it's all your fault! To think that I have promised to marry such an unmitigated imbecile!" cried Jenny, very much upset.

"Check!" agreed Larry, as disturbed as she. "But how could I know that Mary Lou, darn her, would spill the complicated beans? I tell you, Jenny, I was blamed near keeping the whole business to myself, but I couldn't. You see the situation had to be cleared up sooner or later. Mary Lou couldn't go on pretending to the end of time. She couldn't keep stalling Lorrimer until all of us were gray and you and I had our playful grandchildren around our rheumatic knees."

"You take a lot for granted!" sniffed Jenny. But she smiled. "Sure I do. That's the only way to get along in this life," quoth the unabashed Larry. "But don't worry, honey, I'll take a jaunt out to Oakdale. She'll go there, I'm sure. I'll take her and shake her to."

"And bring her back to me," ordered Jenny. "She needn't go to Westwood House. She can see Aunt Margaret here. She needn't lay eyes on Travers—but I can't endure to think of her eating her heart out somewhere, thinking he hates her—Oh, she told me he'd hate her! Larry, can't you choke this Delight person or give her an ounce of arsenic? Because it's Mary Lou who Travers really loves. And she loves him. This other woman doesn't count," said Jenny magnificently.

"Well, who said she did?" asked Larry. Lorrimer got him by phone.

"I thought you'd be there. Can you come over?" he wanted to know. "Jenny, too, if she will—it's rather important."

While Larry was answering, Jenny danced frantically around him, hissing, "Remember, you're not supposed to know anything about recent developments"; at which Larry found himself smirking into the phone, his face wreathed in smiles and his voice tinged with jollity as if Lorrimer could see him.

So a little later they rode over to Westwood and, while Mrs. Lorrimer talked to Jenny in the library and explained to her, very carefully, the whole situation as it now stood, Jenny listening and interpolating the necessary exclamations and murmurs, Larry and Lorrimer went walking together, in the boxwood garden, where Lorrimer told him briefly what had happened.

"No need to go into details. You know about everything. In a sense you're responsible," Lorrimer said, trying to smile. "For it was you who gave Mary Lou the advertisement, which I can only designate as 'fatal'."

"Gosh!" thought Larry, he's taking it like a soldier—"And," Lorrimer went on, "it was you who found Delight. She wants to talk to you. I don't know what about. I've asked Mother to tell Jenny the story—you don't want to keep any secrets from your wife, do you?" he asked. "And moreover she'd have to know soon."

Thanks, Not Anger

"I'll see Miss Harford," Larry promised. "Gosh, what a muddle! And, as you say, most of it my fault."

"I'm not blaming you. I'm thanking you," Lorrimer assured him, "for if it hadn't been for the advertisement—and you—and... Mary Lou, I'd be right where I was, last Autumn, which was in considerable outer darkness. You know, Mitchell, I don't have to tell you."

"You're not sure at Mary Lou?" asked Larry, directly, but a little more hesitantly than was usual to him.

"No." Larry looked at Lorrimer's face, closed against him like a fist, not hostile but a little menacing in its complete lack of revelation, its hard reticence.

"Well," suggested Larry, with an assumed lightness, "suppose I go and see Miss Harford? Didn't you say she'd left the revue? Perhaps she wants me to square her with the powers that be."

Ten minutes later Larry was in Delight's room, standing at the foot of her bed, hands in his pockets, red hair ruffled and with a disarming smile upon his young, attractive countenance.

"Well, young man," commented Delight, "you seem to be able to take a lot of stuff off!"

Ex-Passenger Ship Runs Michigan Mill

Menominee, Mich.—Once a proud freight and passenger carrier on the Great Lakes, the steamer Pere Marquette No. 6 is now operating a saw mill.

Tom Finn, owner of the vessel, also controls the Sawyer Goodman Lumber company. The company's boilers were out this spring and since the mill was going to run only a few months it was deemed inadvisable to replace them.

So Finn backed the old Pere Marquette No. 6 into a slip alongside his mill, hooked up the boat's boilers with the mill's engines and had plenty of steam.

Many Lakes in Nebraska

Nebraska was once thought of as the Great American desert, or part of it. Despite the opinion then and now that the state is arid and Saharalike, there are 1,250 natural lakes in the state. The sand hills of Nebraska, unique in formation, are fairly dotted with natural fresh-water lakes.

Matilda's Dream and What Came of It

By FRANCIS T. McCUTCHEON

"EZRA! EZRA!" called Matilda from the back porch, cupping her hands to her mouth. "Be you stop diggin' long enough to eat your dinner?"

"Comin', Matilda!" bawled Ezra, as he dropped his spade and made for the back porch.

"Ezra, don't you dare come in here on my clean kitchen floor afore you wipe that mud from your feet," called his wife from the stove.

"All right," replied Ezra meekly, and backed out of the door. Cleaning his boots he crossed to the table and slumped into a chair.

"Ezra, ever since your Uncle Cyrus died six months ago an' left you this little farm—what have you done?" asked Matilda, pouring out the coffee. But his wife beat him to the answer. "I'll tell you!" said Matilda, putting the coffee pot back on the stove. "For six months, I reckon, you've been diggin' holes all over the place like a ground hog. What have you found? Nothin'!" said his wife with sarcasm. "Just because your Uncle Cyrus left no money in the bank, is no reason that he buried it in a hole in the ground." His wife ate sparingly, her eyes never left his face.

"Ezra, ain't you gonner stop this fool nonsense?"

"I reckon not, Matilda. I ain't gonner give up yet."

"You better had," she replied. "Think of the neighbors."

"You worry too much about other folks' gossip," he said.

"I reckon not, Ezra. But folks can't figure out them holes an' they're doin' a powerful lot of talkin' an' sneakin'." Why's your mind set on this fool diggin'?" she asked.

"Because Uncle Cyrus had no faith in banks. I've looked from the cellar to the attic, but found nothin', so I reckon he buried it."

"Ezra, do you remember the time your Uncle Cyrus went to New York an' stayed two days? Of course you do. An' maybe some of them slick city fellows sold him some oil stock."

"Stuff an' nonsense," he replied. "Them fellows would have to stay up all night to pull the wool over his eyes. Uncle Cyrus was slicker'n a fox."

"Well, Ezra, I'm tellin' you that they've got smart fellows in New York who don't have to lose any sleep sellin' oil stock to country folks like your Uncle Cyrus," called Matilda for a parting shot.

Next morning when Ezra came in for his breakfast, Matilda asked as she poured the coffee, "Ezra, do you believe in dreams?"

"Well, sometimes I do an' sometimes I don't. What's on your mind?" he asked.

"Last night I dreamed of your Uncle Cyrus. I saw him settin' at this table, bendin' over a tin box."

"Was that all?" asked Ezra.

"No," said Matilda. "I saw him close the box an' tuck it under his arm."

Then he picked up the lantern from the table an' left the house."

"Did you see, Matilda, where he took the box?" he asked.

"Sure, I did," she said, continuing. "He slowly made his way to the rear of the barn, where he stopped as though listenin'."

"Yes, Matilda, go on," said Ezra.

"Then, Ezra, I woke up."

"Well of all the darn fool dreams," said Ezra, slumping in his chair. "Why didn't you keep asleep for a minute longer?"

"Well, for land sakes alive, sleep, an' you on your back, snorin' like a bass-fiddle. But I've been thinkin' a powerful lot since that dream. Get your spade an' come out to the barn."

Matilda led the way to the rear of the barn, when she paused. "I saw him standin' right here," and she pointed to a spot midway between the barn and the corn-crib. "I'm figurin' he was makin' for that corn-crib, Ezra."

"By cracky, Matilda. Maybe, you're right," and started digging with nervous energy. In a few minutes he straightened up with a small tin box in his hands. "There she be. Come on," he called and swiftly made his way to the house.

"Them pesky neighbors won't think it so funny when they know I've found Uncle Cyrus' cash box." His nervous fingers opened the box and four eyes were centered on its contents.

"Well, Matilda, I reckon you're right. Them New York slickers got Uncle Cyrus' cash an' we got a lot of worthless oil stock."

With head down he dejectedly started for the door.

"Where be you goin'?" called Matilda.

"I reckon I'm goin' to start my spring plowin'," he called back as the door banged. She sat for a period looking at the box and reminiscing aloud.

"That was a lucky find when I came across that old box in the attic," and Matilda chuckled. "And the old box did some good when I buried it under the corn-crib," and again Matilda chuckled. "And the old farm will be lookin' natural again with wheat an' corn ripenin' in the summer sun."

This time Matilda smiled.

CHAPTER LVII.

"YES," he replied, "I do. I've nothing to go on except this: If he sees her again, if he realizes that—that she was herself all along, that the part she played was really, in a way, minor, he'll know. He'll know that it was she."

"That's enough. Can one shout in this mansion? If so, call Lorry, ask him to come up here."

"What are you going to do?" demanded Lorry, but starting obediently for the door.

"I'm going to upset an apple cart."

"Well, you've an established precedent in Eve," wisecracked Larry mechanically. He went to the door, out to the gallery and leaned over. "Oh, Lorrimer," he shouted, "will you come on up here a moment?"

Back in the bedroom he stared at her. She smiled back at him. "I feel like the chap in Dickens what's-his-name—it's a far better thing I do," she quoted with gravity, "than I have ever done."

But her eyes were not mocking.

Already Married

Lorrimer arrived in the room, looked from one to the other.

"Want me?" he asked.

"Not permanently," smiled Delight. "I've just been telling Mr. Mitchell that you've asked me to marry you, Lorry. Very decent of you and all that. And I want to tell you before a reliable witness, that a previous engagement keeps me from accepting."

You see, Lorry, a year or so after I had word of your death, I met a man named Harry Blanchard. He was in the same road show. A very good-looking person. He's in Australia now and has been writing me for some time to come out and join him. I don't want to—much—so probably I shan't. But he's the reason why I can't marry you, because," she said, "I'm married—to him. And there's a record of that marriage, in Liverpool."

Lorrimer stared at her. He said, after a moment:

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"Because I'm not a very nice person. Harry and I have been separated for a good many years. We got on each other's nerves. Also he's been more or less a rolling stone. No moss but lots of polish. I couldn't see tenting tonight in the Australian bush. The last letter I had from him came before I left for the States. He's made good, in a sense. He feels domestic, he urged me to come out. I was half inclined to do so, being on my uppers, but the chance to take a part in this revue came along and—so I did too. Then you arrived on the scene. It was something of a temptation to accept that gallant offer of yours, Lorry; we could have gone through a nice formal engagement, and I rather fancied I could dispose of Harry in the courts quite quietly and with no one being the wiser. But I've decided not to. After all, he wasn't a bad sort, and they say Australia has a beautiful climate," said Delight, "so I might change my mind about going. I don't notice managers rushing forward with offers in these United States. That's all. Now will you two young men leave me to take a nap? Siesta. An old Spanish custom, I believe."

"And Lorry, tell your mother that as soon as I can wiggle this damned fin of mine I'll move on. She's been awfully kind, really, and I don't want to trespass any longer than I have to." She broke off and looked at Lorrimer, who stood staring at her like a man unable to believe his ears, his face help you all we can. We feel, in a sense, responsible. Please, my dear, don't let foolish, stubborn pride stand in your way. If you decide to go—out to your husband, or if you plan to stay in London and look for an engagement, you'll need money. I—I want you to take it from me, as a free gift," she begged.

Well Provided For

"Oh, I'm not proud." Delight denied with a short laugh. "I've borrowed before this—with no inten-the mirror of strange and conflicting emotions markedly reflected—anger, relief, gratitude. "Oh, please go," said Delight.

Lorry touched Lorrimer's arm. "Let's step on it, old man," he said, rather low.

Lorrimer let himself be taken to the door, walking like a man in a dream. There Larry turned and Lorrimer walked on ahead of him. "You're a good trouper," said Larry to Delight.

The Obstacle Removed

A few days later Delight Harford went back to New York. She had had a long talk with Mrs. Lorrimer, in which she had told her a little more fully and much less cynically of her reasons for "coming clean, as they say over here." And Mrs. Lorrimer had listened, finding herself, as is human nature, liking the slangy, careless woman now that she knew all danger from her was past. She herself took her to town and arranged for her brief stay at a hotel—not the shabby one in which Larry had found her—before the boat sailed for England, upon which Mrs. Lorrimer had procured passage for her.

"I've talked to Travers," she said, during their conversation, "and he feels as I do. We must—" tion of returning it. You may as well know that about me. But in this case I've saved my own face. I'm not being—bought off."

Margaret Lorrimer flushed slightly.

"No, of course you're not."

"Then," said Delight, with a sudden, rather charming simplicity, "I'll take whatever you offer me and be glad of it. And grateful. I'm not a kid. I've been up against it. I don't want to be again. I haven't the stamina somehow to keep on facing life in dingy lodging houses, on very little food and one pair of silk stockings, going the rounds of the agencies. Perhaps after all, I'll go to Australia. I might make a go of it with Harry, after all," she said, thoughtfully; "We've both been through the mill; we can make allowances for each other."

So, in the end, she went back to England, very comfortably, with the knowledge that, besides money in her pocket, she possessed a very substantial sum in a London bank, which Mrs. Lorrimer had promptly cabled over, enough and more than enough to see her through a long time of waiting, in London, for an engagement; and far more than sufficient to take her to Australia and back again, should she decide to go.

YOUNG STRIBLING HAS BOXING WORLD IN REAL QUANDARY

NO ONE CERTAIN AS TO HOW HE WILL FIGHT MAX
SCHMELING

GEORGIAN'S RECORD HAS BEEN ONE OF MUFFING HIS BIG CHANCES

Cleveland, O., June 29.—(U.P.)—Young Stribling, pride of Georgia and eternal question mark of the ring, once more has the boxing world in a quandary over what he will do when he faces Max Schmeling of Germany for the world's heavyweight title in the new Cleveland stadium Friday night.

Nine of the ten boxing men favor Stribling to win, after seeing the southerner's next to last workout last night, the logical question is: "Why?"

Stribling's record reveals that he has always muffed his big chance in the past, and his training activities do not reveal him as an improved fighter.

He was awkward, inaccurate and indifferent in a 4-round workout last night against Frank Cawley, Pittston, Pa., Frank Kittis, Akron, O., and Gene Stanton, Cleveland, at his Geauga Lake, O., training camp.

He looked tired, drawn and weary. His punches were not sharp or accurately aimed.

One of the best answers to why nearly everyone favors Stribling to win is because Schmeling has made himself decidedly unpopular by his high and mighty attitude since winning recognition as champion by winning on a foul from Jack Sharkey.

For only 30 seconds out of 4 rounds of sparring at his Conneaut Lake, Pa., training camp, did Schmeling look anything like the fighter who knocked out Johnny Risko, or slashed Paulino Uzcudun to ribbons.

As far as condition is concerned, Schmeling appears to be in better shape and more ready for a long, hard grind than Stribling.

Some of Stribling's wild rushes at his sparring partners seem to indicate that the Georgian plans to throw caution to the winds and try to knock out the German as quickly as possible.

Boxing men figure he longer the fight goes the better chance Schmeling has to win. The German has never been a fast starter. Risko had him outpointed until Max connected with a short right which sprawled the Cleveland rubber man in the ninth round more than two years ago. The Paulino-Schmeling bout was close until after they passed the tenth round. Schmeling hadn't even started when Sharkey tossed a low left into the German's groin.

But few think that Stribling will give Schmeling the opportunity to carry the fight into the last stages, which makes the whole outcome revolve around what the southerner does.

Everyone knows what Schmeling will do. He will stand up straight, and trade punches if the fight is carried to him.

He'll weave and try to get inside Stribling's arms. He won't clinch or hold.

If anyone thinks he can figure out what Stribling will do, then a leopard can change its spots and it snows on the 4th of July in Macon, Ga. There are at least a dozen fights in Stribling's career that prove he's as uncertain as tomorrow.

Playing under a boiling sun at the N. P. grounds here yesterday, the Investors Syndicate, crack Mill City kitenball team, had little difficulty in completely subduing the J. C. Penney team, city league leaders. Because of the intense heat a crowd of only about 300 watched the game.

Cummins and Mercer divided the mound duties for the visitors and held the Penney team completely in check during the game. Foster started on the hill for Brainerd but was relieved by Franks. Neither was effective against the sluggers from the south who connected solidly in almost every inning.

At only one time did the Penney team apparently have a chance and that was at the close of the first inning when the score was knotted, 1-1. The visitors clearly established themselves as one of the best kitenball aggregations in the Northwest, not only in playing ability but in sportsmanship as well.

They Can "Take It"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

"BAT" BATTALINO... IT WAS HIS AMAZING ENDURANCE THAT WORE DOWN LABARBA AND CHOCOLATE!

PAULINO--THE TOUGH OLD WOODCHOPPER MEETS MAX BAER AT RENO SHORTLY IN THE FIRST IMPORTANT 20-ROUND BOUT IN YEARS!

ABILITY to absorb much punishment and fight back fearfully is vital to the success of any real ring champion. And that, too, is a necessary asset for any battler who would carry on for any considerable length of time. Unless you can "take it," as the boys say, never think of pursuing a professional punching career.

Perhaps, the two best specimens of "take-it" talent among active ringfighters are Battling Battalino, world's featherweight champion, and Paulino Uzcudun, leather-battered Basque, who is to meet young Max Baer in a 20-round bout at Reno on July 4.

Battalino would not be a champion today if his remarkable stamina had not withstood the skilled assaults of Kid Chocolate and Fidel La Barba. In each instance he waded into his opponent incessantly, took their best punches, and came on to win the 15-round decisions. Not since Battling Nelson's time has a tougher youngster hammered his way to a fistic crown.

Paulino no longer looms as a heavyweight champ, but he's still a sturdy, plodding, courageous warrior worthy of his Basque blood. Max Schmeling cut him all but to pieces two years ago, yet Paulino was never knocked off his feet throughout the fifteen rounds.

Other heavies have given him terrible batterings, but in many instances the Basque came on to win through sheer strength and gameness. He took a fearful lacing from Primo Carnera last Fall but kept plugging along and, at the end of ten rounds, he had given the Italian giant plenty, too. Now he is to tackle the youthful, hard-hitting Baer in Jack Dempsey's Reno show. It is the first 20-rounder scheduled in the U. S. in many years. Paulino has never been knocked out. If he lasts the 20 with the slugging Baer (and the veteran may outwear the youngster before then) it may stamp Paulino for all time as one of the toughest of ringmen.

BENTLEY RIPS OUT GUARD RAIL, 4 HURT

Car Overturns After Hitting Bridge
Rail; Splintered Board Gouges
Youth's Arm

OFFICERS SAVE LIFE

Thousands Seek Heat Relief on Highways
Causing Accidents; One Driver Jailed

Blistering heat that found the highways around Brainerd choked with traffic as thousands sought relief resulting in a series of accidents over the week end continued unchecked today with the temperature remaining at the 96 degree mark at noon.

The most serious accident of the week end was that on the Mississippi river bridge in West Brainerd.

Roland Bentley, M. and I. employee, drove his car at 1 a. m. Sunday into the splash board guard rail on the east end of the bridge ripping out 40 feet of the board protection, rolling over a time and a half, injuring himself and his three companions.

Those with him in the car, Agnes Shields, Eleanor Lidstrom and a man named Gordon were also taken to the St. Joseph's hospital but were permitted to leave after their injuries were cared for.

Bentley's most serious injury was his left arm. Four splinters were taken from his arm by a Minnesota Highway Patrol officer. A splintered board from the guard rail gouged out his arm muscle to the bone. He may be handicapped the use of that arm, it was learned today.

Agnes Shields received a deep gash in her head and was knocked unconscious. All four suffered from shock.

The only direct reason for the accident given today was that Bentley took his eyes off the road for a fraction of a second as he entered the bridge from Brainerd.

There was only one other car on the bridge at the time. In that car were two Minnesota Highway Patrol officers. They were approaching Brainerd and were on the other end of the bridge driving with their lights dimmed.

The two patrolmen were the first to the scene. They were particularly efficient. Immediately they placed two flares at the front and rear of the vehicle to warn approaching motorists.

In the shortest time possible they had recovered the injured from the car and assisted them into a car. While one patrolman took the party to the hospital the other remained at the scene of the accident to clear traffic. Two more flares were placed, each at 200 feet on both sides of the wrecked car.

In the remarkable time of eight minutes the wrecked car had been taken from the bridge and traffic was returned to normal.

The crash was heard for blocks. One of the boards of the guard rail was driven through the radiator of the car pushing the engine back. The car was practically wrecked. It was almost a new vehicle as it had only been driven around 2,000 miles.

Bentley's life was saved, it was said here today, by the speed of the officers. Had no assistance been given immediately the youth stood a chance of bleeding to death, it was said. Blood gushed from the wound in the arm even to the interior top of the vehicle.

One other motor vehicle accident occurred a few hours earlier. Don McKenzie, a newspaper man from Crookston, was driving to Brainerd from the Brainerd Pine Beach hotel where he participated in the golf tournament. Unfamiliar with the road which joins State Highway No. 19, the driver failed to make the turn at the main highway. The car plunged off the road imbedding itself into the mud in the ditch. Occupants escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

One arrest was made by the Minnesota Highway Patrol over the week end. Walter Emmerson of Brainerd was the offender. Driving the car of his friend, Valentine Maki, Brainerd, he crashed into the rear end of a car driven by Mrs. H. L. Waldron, Staples.

The offense took place one mile west of Brainerd on State Trunk Highway No. 2. Emmerson was charged with driving the car in a careless and heedless manner.

County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan who presented the case in municipal court said that Emmerson was intoxicated and that under the circumstances he could make no recommendation for leniency to the judge.

Judge J. H. Warner placed the sentence at $100 or 90 days when Emmerson pleaded guilty. The prisoner said he was unable to pay the fine and would have to serve out the county jail sentence. He stated that it was the first time he had anything to drink for a long time, that he had been out of work for almost a year and that he was only able to provide for his mother by getting spare jobs.

Emmerson told the court that he did not purchase the liquor but had it given to him by some friends who came from Superior for the week end.

ROAD PATROL JAILS 83 DRUNKS IN MAY

Summer Travel Brings Increase in Activities of Highway
Traffic Squad

That summer brings out the joy-riders is indicated by the report on the activities of the Minnesota Highway patrol for the month of May, submitted this week by Chief Earle Brown to C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways. Eighty three arrests were made for driving while drunk, compared to 47 in April. Fines imposed on drunken drivers increased from $2,448 in April to $4,015 in May. Eighty cars were taken in custody in May, due to drivers being drunk and 43 in April. Fines for all causes increased from $4,033 to $5,491.

Actions for driving without proper license, however, decreased. Arrests dropped from 114 in April to 80 in May, tags for improper license from 1,181 to 45, warnings from 267 to 6, and cars taken in custody from 58 to 41. Revenue, due to license corrections, decreased from $4,919 in April to $1,392 in May.

Arrests for all causes were 286 in April to 284 in May. Next to drunken driving and improper license, the most frequent cause for arrest was failure to stop at an arterial road, which brought 48 arrests in April and 78 in May.

Tags for illegal equipment increased from 1,697 in April to 2,847 in May. The four most common faults were: one headlight, no rear light, lights out of adjustment, and illegal brakes.

Warnings for violations of the traffic act increased from 738 in April to 1,092 in May. Of the warnings in May, 502 were for speed in congested area, a great many of these being given during the heavy traffic of the Memorial day period. Going through stop signs brought 269 warnings.

Aid of various kinds was given to 433 motorists in April and 677 in May. The officers attended 15 accidents in April and 33 in May.

With the full quota of seventy men on duty after June first, larger figures on some of the activities are expected in the next monthly report. It is believed, however, that the presence of the doubled force will in itself discourage carelessness by motorists, and eventually show a reduction instead of an increase in many of the errors which lead to arrests, tags, or warnings from the patrol.

POPULATION FOR STATE INCREASES

More Than 2½ Million People Live in State; 49 Percent Are Urban Dwellers

Statistics for the 1930 population of Minnesota classified as urban and rural, and by sex, color, age, marital condition, illiteracy etc., have been issued by the Bureau of the Census in a bulletin (Population—Second Series) entitled, "Composition and Characteristics of the Population." This is a pamphlet of 79 pages, 9 by 11½ inches, consisting mainly of statistical tables.

The urban population of Minnesota in 1930 was 1,257,616, representing an increase of 206,023, or 19.6 per cent, since 1920. The urban population formed 49.0 per cent of the total population (2,563,953), as compared with 44.1 per cent in 1920. Urban population, as defined by the Census Bureau, is in general that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, the remainder being classified as rural.

The rural population of Minnesota in 1930 was 1,306,337, comprising 888,049 persons living on farms, and 418,288 not living on farms, representing as a whole a decrease of 29,195, or 2.2 per cent, as compared with the rural population in 1920 (1,335,532). The rural-farm population, taken alone, decreased 5,411, or six-tenths of one per cent, between 1920 and 1930, while the rural-nonfarm population decreased 23,784, or 5.4 per cent.

Of the entire population of Minnesota, 99.0 per cent are white, 83.9 per cent being native white, and 15.1 per cent foreign-born white. Of the native white population, 43.5 per cent are of native parentage, and 40.4 per cent are of foreign or mixed parentage. Of the foreign-born white population of Minnesota (which numbered 388,294), 79.3 per cent have been naturalized.

The population of Minnesota as a whole increased 176,828, or 7.4 per cent, between 1920 and 1930. The number of children under 1 year of age, showed a decrease of 10.3 per cent, while the entire group under 5 years decreased 30,393, or 11.6 per cent.

The proportion of the population 7 to 13 years of age attending school increased from 93.9 per cent in 1920 to 98.0 per cent in 1930, and of those 16 and 17 years of age, the proportion increased from 42.5 per cent in 1920 to 57.0 per cent in 1930. The percentage of illiteracy in the population 10 years of age and over decreased from 1.8 to 1.3.

Of the 992,847 gainful workers in the state, 791,553 were males, representing 69.1 per cent of the male population, and 201,294 were females, representing 16.1 per cent of the female population. Including both farm owners and farm laborers, agriculture employed 303,822 persons, or a little less than one-third of all the gainful workers in the state. Of the 118,240 farm laborers, 41,004, or 34.7 per cent, were unpaid family workers. The various manufacturing and mechanical industries, employed 195,779 persons, the largest numbers being in the building industry, iron and steel industries, and food and allied industries. There were 98,180 persons engaged in transportation; 162,680 in trade, including banking and insurance; 18,386 public service (not elsewhere classified); 82,273 in professional service; and 86,852 in domestic and personal service.

In the bulletin which has just been issued there are a number of features not contained in the 1920 census reports, including a presentation of the number of gainful workers in each of about 30 industry groups, by counties; detailed age data for counties, a classification of the population of each town by color, sex, age, etc., and an extensive presentation of statistics for the rural-farm population and the rural-nonfarm population.

STEAL GOLD FROM DENTAL OFFICES

Burglars Make Three Raids, Fail to Break in Two Other Offices

Burglars broke into the offices of three dentists in Brainerd over the week end, stealing gold valued at more than $75. They also tampered with the doors of the offices of Dr. W. A. Erickson and Dr. A. A. Steinfeldt but failed to gain entry.

Entries were made in the offices of Drs. H. E. Murphy, A. K. Cohen, B. E. Norquist.

Losses Valuable Watch

Mrs. Croil Hunter, tourist, reported here today she had lost a valuable diamond wrist watch near her cottage on Wilson Bay. The watch is insured. Anyone finding it is asked to report to Chief Thomas Temington, Brainerd. A reward is offered.

5 SCHOOL DISTRICT HOUSES ARE UNSOLD

No More Public Auctions to Dispose of Remaining Property on Two Blocks Acquired

Four dwelling houses remain to be sold from Block 82 and another, the Jacob Muller home on Block 161, is still unsold by the Brainerd Board of Education.

The block 82 property was acquired for the construction of the new junior high school and the Muller property for additional land to the Lincoln school.

Louis F. Hohman, secretary of the board, said today no more public auctions would be conducted for the disposal of the remaining buildings.

Buildings unsold are those formerly occupied by the following families: Louis O. Johnson, Lena Johnson, Coventry home, Ledoux house and the Jacob Muller property.

The buildings will be sold to the highest individual bidders. Those not sold will be dismantled.

Rosemary a Figure on

All Pages of History

Rosemary is a plant of the mint family and grows in the region of the Mediterranean sea. It is a low shrub-like plant with linear leaves, dark green above, white beneath, and with margins rolled back on to the under face. The flowers grow in clusters and the fruit consists of four nutlets. Rosemary was valued in ancient times for its aromatic quality and medicinal uses, but is now used mainly for its perfume. As an emblem of remembrance, rosemary plays an important part in folklore and literature. In Shakespeare's "Hamlet," Ophelia says: "There's rosemary; that's for remembrance." According to tradition this herb strengthens the memory, and was also used a great deal at one time to quiet the nerves. It was often used at weddings, and to wear rosemary was always taken to be significant of a wedding. The nurse, in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," refers to the emblematical characteristics of the herb, when she asks: "Doth not rosemary and Romeo begin both with a (one) letter?" According to the language of flowers it means "Fidelity in love."

Height of Eucalyptus

The statement is made that the Australian eucalyptus attains a height of 400 feet, but a member of the forest products laboratory staff, who spent a year in Australia not long ago, used the opportunity to check up on some of the basic facts. The tallest Australian tree he actually measured was 310 feet, and he satisfied himself that the tallest tree ever measured with accuracy in that country was a eucalyptus regnans, or "mountain ash," that grew at Colac, Victoria, and was 345 feet high. A prize offered at the Melbourne exposition in 1888 for proof of the tallest tree standing at that time was won on evidence for a eucalypt 325 feet high. Measurements by a well-known forester gave 363 feet for the height of a redwood growing in Bull Creek Flat, Calif. This is the tallest tree in the world on which there is authentic and reliable information.

Chopin's Ancestry

The grandfather of Chopin—named Shop (Szop)—at one time migrated to France, and there Chopin's father was born, writes a correspondent to a Philadelphia paper. By that time they added that "in" at the end of their name to "Franchify" it. Then the family moved back to Poland, where young Szopen—that is the way they spelled it—was born in Zelazowa-Wola. At that time there was a great deal of such migration. So Chopin or, to spell it correctly, Szopen—the same pronunciation—was born in Poland of Polish parents, from a Polish family, and was a Polish patriot.

APPLYING FOR WORK

Sydney Shields, well-known actress, has an old negro mammy from the South in her employ. The other day a colored man appeared at the door seeking work. The women met him and the following was the conversation between the two:

"I don't reckon you-all knows of nobody what don't want to hire nobody to do nothin', does you?"

"Yes, indeed, I doesn't,"—Illinois Central Magazine.

In Action

Traveler—Yes, just as I was settled comfortably in my tent I heard the screech and yowl of a wild cat.

Friend—Why didn't you serve it as you do the cats at home and throw your shoe at it?

Traveler—Because my shoes were extremely busy about that time.

Happy Moon Legends

Strong Heart's Tears.

Once, many suns and moons and snows ago, Na-quill was flying over the earth on business.

Na-quill was supposed to take care of the rain, but some one else had started a stream of water in a valley. So Na-quill was in his golden eagle suit and he flew fast.

He found Strong Heart sitting on a mountain crying. "What is the matter, little one?" asked Na-quill.

Now Strong Heart was not little. He was such a good-sized boy that he could step over a mountain in one step. Na-quill only called him that because Strong Heart was his son.

"I—I am lonely," said Strong Heart, and kept on crying.

"How silly you are!" said Na-quill. He did not like to see Strong Heart keep on crying. Besides, Strong Heart's tears were making a small lake.

"How can you be lonely? There are many, many children to play with," said Na-quill after a moment.

"What games can I play with them?" asked Strong Heart, looking up.

"Oh, many games. Hide-and-go-seek!" answered Na-quill, giving Strong Heart an eagle feather on which to dry his eyes.

"I can't play hide-and-go-seek with the other boys and girls. I am too big to hide behind a tree, and when I hide behind a mountain they do not want to climb it to look on the other side," and Strong Heart started to cry again.

"Well, let me see," said Na-quill. He had to stop to think, because he had never been a boy himself.

"Let me see. Why don't you make a teeter-totter, or whatever you call it?"

"I made a nice teeter-totter," said Strong Heart, "and they wouldn't play on it. They said it was too high." He pointed to a long rock that lay across a tall rock. Then he started to cry once more. Balancing rock it is called today, but once it was Strong Heart's plaything.

His tears made a large lake. "True, true," said Na-quill. "I can see that ordinary boys and girls will not do for your playmates."

"You want some one who will step over mountains."

"You want some one who can teeter-totter on the tallest rocks."

"Your playmate must be beautiful."

"Hmmm, it seems you want the Moon."

"That would be nice, Na-quill," said Strong Heart. "There is a new moon tonight. Are you going to get me that one?"

"Hmmm, I'll see," said Na-quill. And Na-quill clapped his wings. Then Kee Yay, who is Na-quill's helper, came down out of the clouds.

"What is it?" asked Kee Yay. "What time does the Moon come up tonight?" asked Na-quill.

"It is a new moon," said Kee Yay. "She will probably be late."

"Please wake me when she does come up," said Na-quill. "I am going to give Strong Heart the Moon to play with."

"Would that be wise?" said Kee Yay. "The Red-children tell time by the Moon. They would not like it. The North Wind tells time by the Moons. He would not like to lose a Moon. Ools Kah Stee would not like for you to take the Moon out of the sky. He is—"

"I am sorry you do not like my plan, Kee Yay," said Na-quill, "for I am going to do it just the same."

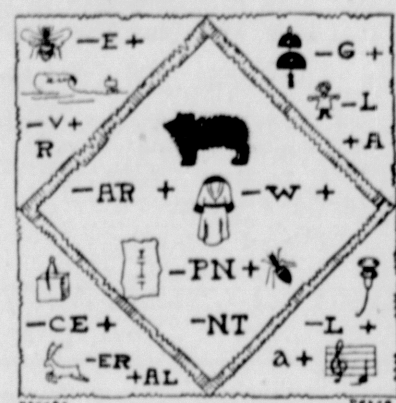

Kee Yay opened his mouth. Then he closed it. At last he said, "I will call you at moon-rise. Now what shall we do about this lake of Strong Heart's tears?"

Na-quill frowned. "This is no place at all for a lake. Let me see. There are mountains all around the lake. No use to tip the earth up to let the lake run out. Na-quill stuck a finger in and tasted.

"Hmmm, salty, just as I thought. I'm afraid, Kee Yay, we will have to leave this salty lake here."

And to this very day there is a lake of salty water—ah! I have not finished. Hear, then, of the finding of Happy Moon—later on.

Hogging the Right-of-Way

Motorists know there are plenty of drivers that "hog" the highways, but here's a case where a Pennsylvania train thoroughly held up traffic between New York and Washington at Baltimore when it hogged a great deal more than its share of tracks.

The locomotive straddled three sets of rails before it came to rest with its nose shoved into an embankment. No one was injured, but it took wreckers three hours to get things straightened out. Note how the tender and cars are piled across over rails.
